Academics — More Than Meets the Eye!

The main reason we attended school was to learn. We needed to acquire knowledge that would help us to succeed in life. We entered school like empty books and left with volumes of information. Statistically, 82.5% of our graduates went on to some form of higher education, about 36% more than the state average. We challenged ourselves with courses like physics, U.S. history, and calculus. We took advantage of new opportunities like advanced placement chemistry. We broadened our personal horizons with classes such as ceramics, telecommunications, wood and metal shop.

The $94,000 dividend from last year's "Cash for Cap" test was divided among various departments. The business department was able to install a new computer typing lab, the band could afford some new instruments, and $15,000 went for new computerized equipment for drafting and metal labs. The money was a reward for school whose students improved their test scores.

The faculty was dedicated to producing well-educated students. They knew what was important for survival in the real world. The average teacher had taught at Los Gatos High for 17.5 years. Together the faculty and students helped Los Gatos High be ranked the number two high school in the state, according to Mrs. Hughes.

Eleanor Wenks creates a coil-pot in the popular elective, ceramics.

Paul Lyles adjusts his burner as he prepares to dehydrate an anhydrous salt.

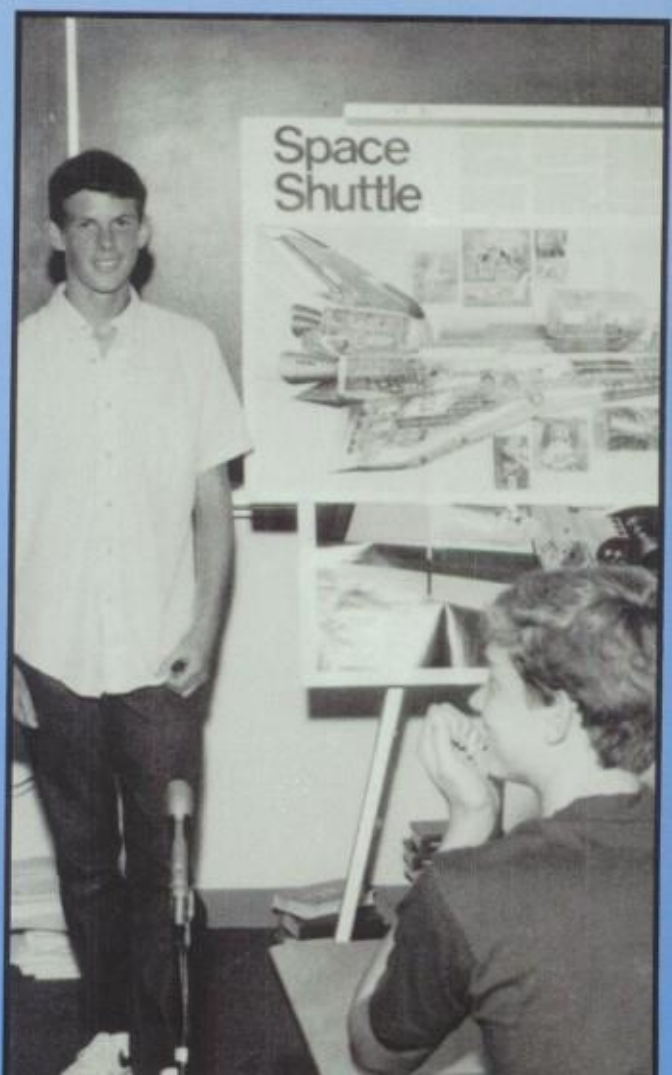

Todd Garde, Brian Tompkins, and Mike Syres take a look at an MG in the senior parking lot.

Mr. Rudolph's history class enjoys watching the video "1776".

Eric Schaefer launches into his speech.

Student Life — Look Again at All We Do!

A student's life was more than just going to classes, eating, and sleeping. Almost everyone had something else to occupy his or her time. Sports practices, play or band rehearsals, dances, and other club activities consumed a lot of our extra time. Outside school activities such as a job, a boyfriend or girlfriend, or a hobby captured our interests.

There were a few hobbies that many people shared an interest in, such as skiing, horseback riding, or sports. Some students, however had a lesser known hobby like dance, theater, photography reading, war-gaming, remote controlled vehicles, being lazy, or "scoping guys".

When the weekend or holiday came around, students wanted to go out and do something. Most of the time this required money. This is where a vicious cycle began. To earn money, many students had jobs. The money went for the car that took them to and from work. If they had money left they could go with their friends to Santa Cruz, a movie or shopping for the latest fashions. This was the way we students operated for the most part. A little work and play mixed together to form a balanced lifestyle.

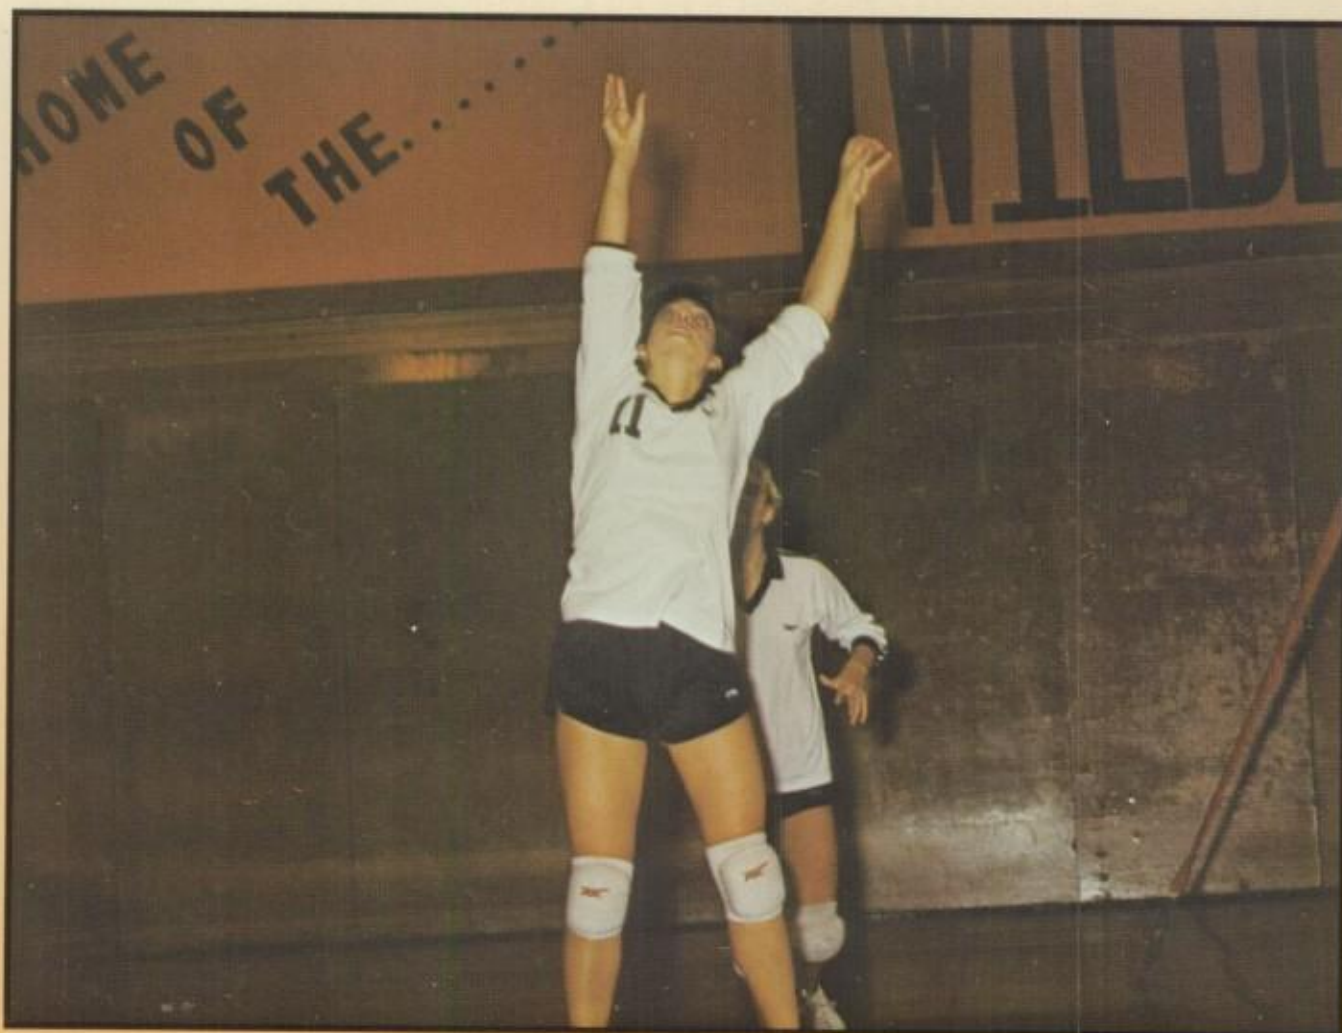

The ceramics class gets up to their elbows in clay.

Marijke Russo shares her lunch with friends in front of the school.

Tiegen Fox completes her volley as a team member covers.

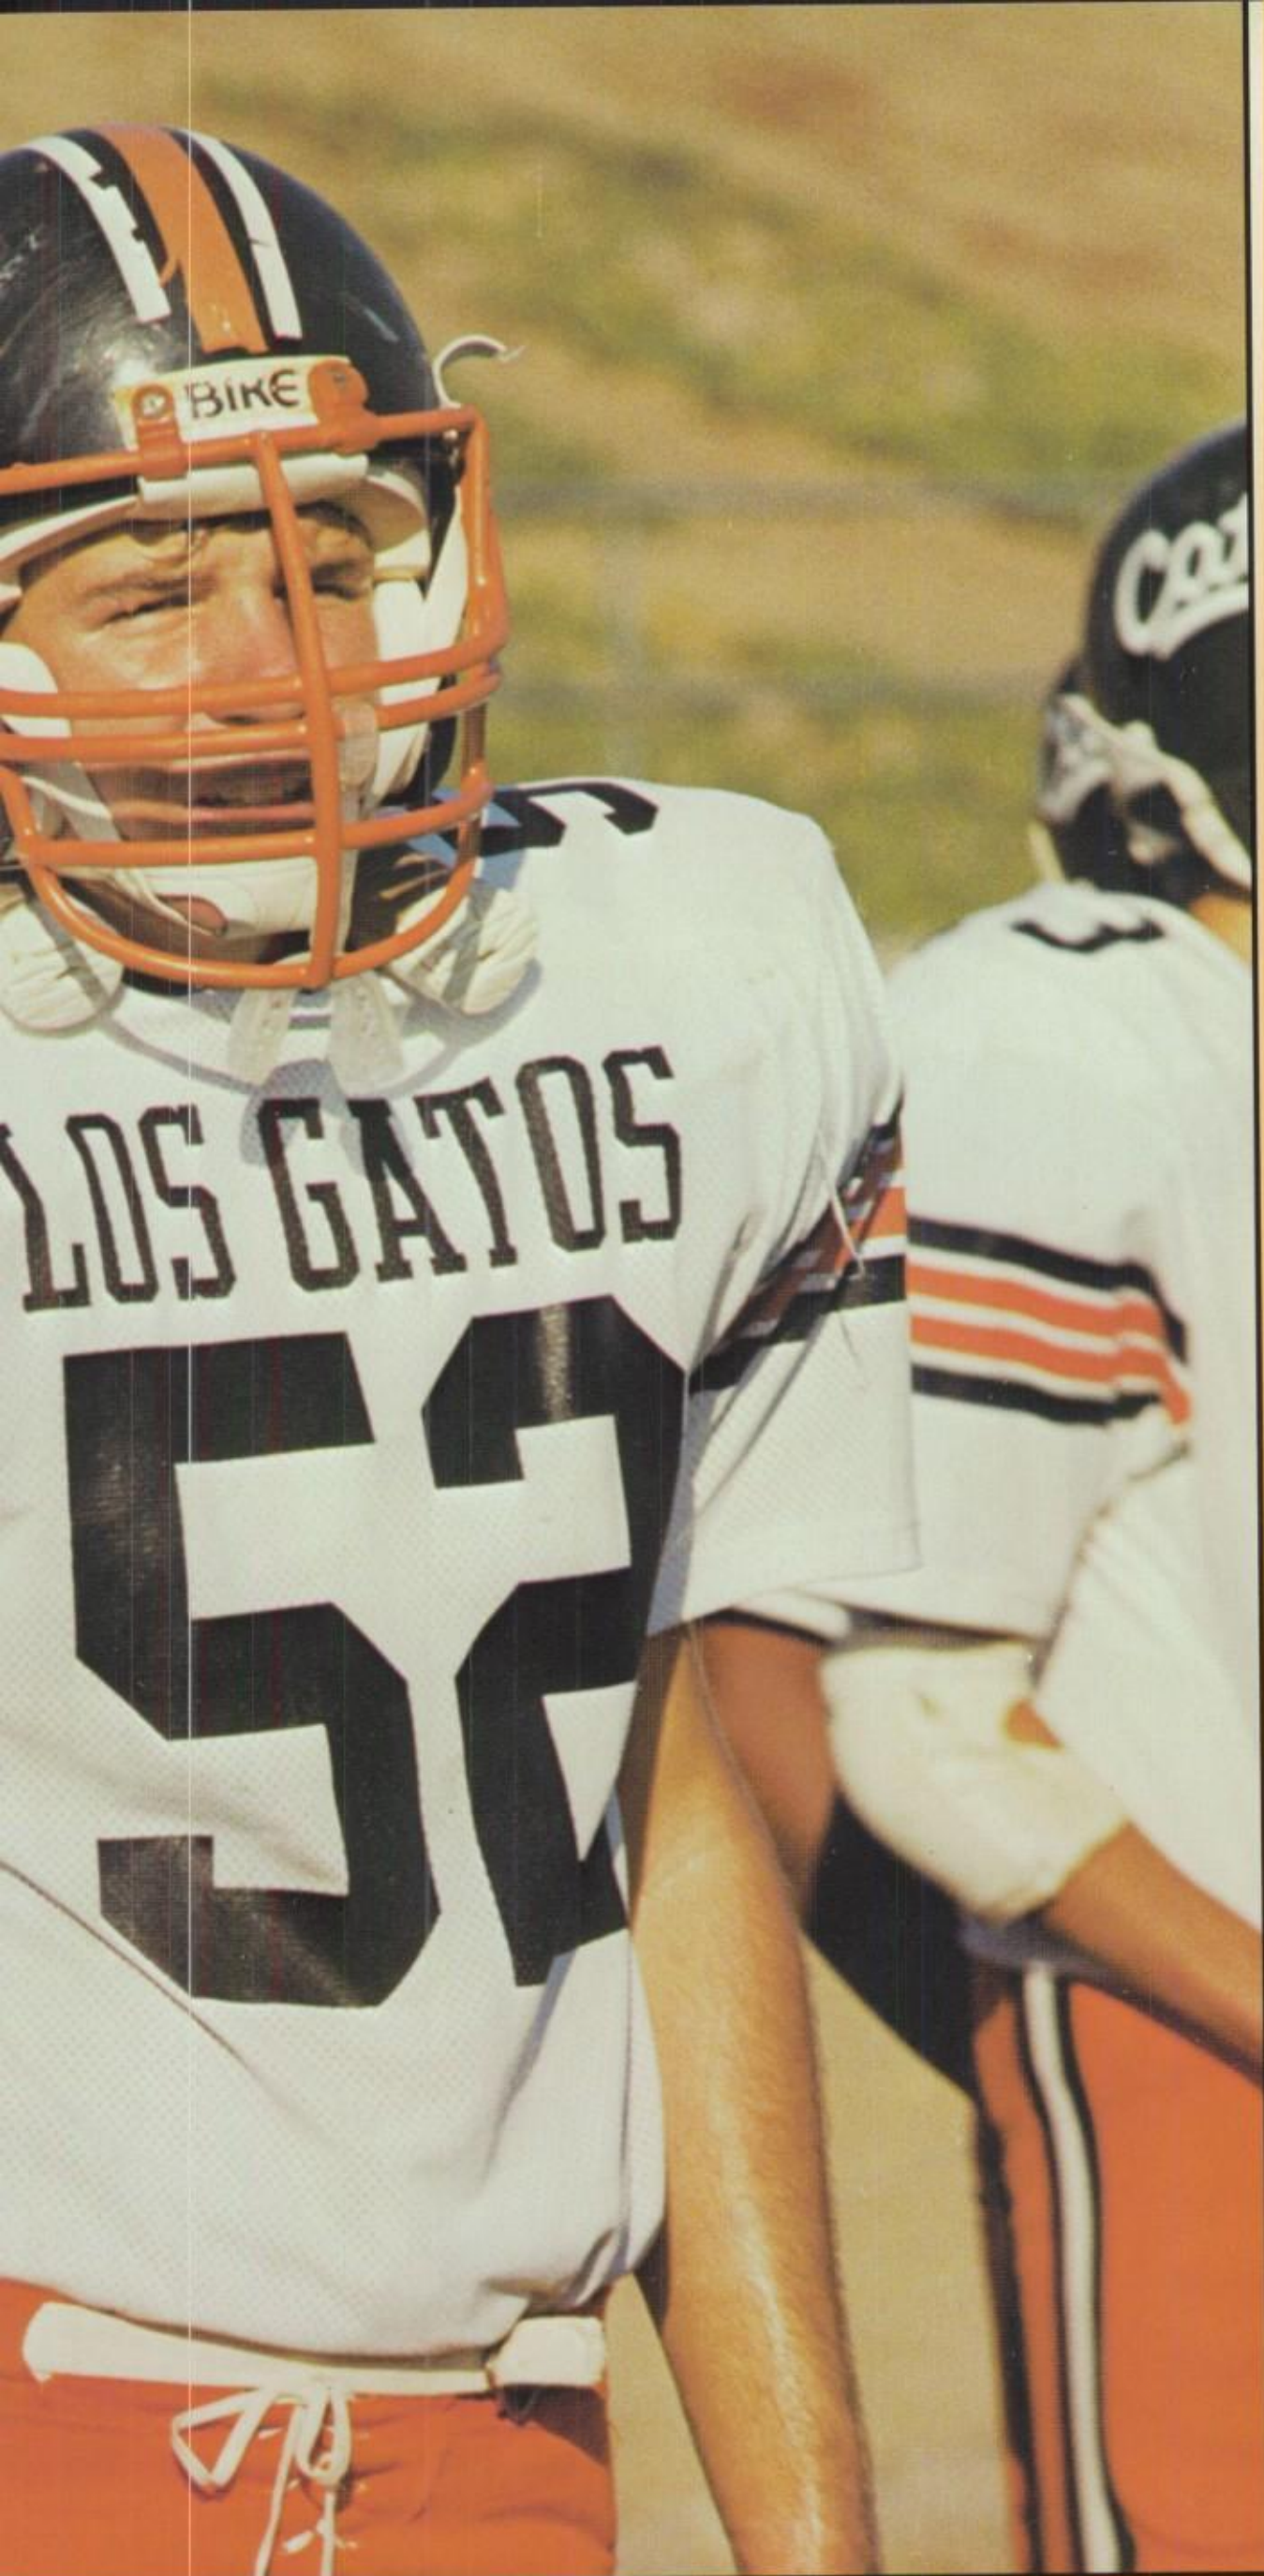

Sports — Up Close and Personal

Los Gatos was known for its tough athletic teams. Both the varsity football and girls swim teams carried on the tradition of winning league championships. We had approximately 40 teams representing 17 different sports. It was said that in one way or another over 90% of the students and faculty had something to do with the sports program. Whether they played, coached, reported, timed, or just spectated, sports touched the lives of most of us. Athletic participation helped to make students more well-rounded.

Athletes were tested both physically and mentally on the playing field. In addition, they had to keep up with homework, jobs, and their social lives too. Sportsmanship and teamwork gave our teams style and victories that made other schools look again at Los Gatos High!

People — Worth A Second Glance

Students came in all shapes and sizes, but looks were only a facade. It was what was inside that counted. The people of our school were special. They cared about others, and weren't afraid to get involved. The people of Los Gatos High, students and staff alike, were people that you could count on. Students were spirited and eager to participate in sporting events and rallies. Likewise, they were excited about learning. The faculty was anxious to help students understand. Some teachers gave up their lunch time or came to school early just to help one learn to help themselves. But for many of us, the most important people were our friends. They supported you, loaned you a dollar for lunch, quizzed you for that test and shared your secrets.

A great deal of time was spent socializing with friends. Before school, during lunch, in the classroom and at night on the phone, friends kept the lines of communication open. The latest gossip was never more than phone call away! After all, school was a place to socialize; friends made school come alive.

We've Got Spirit, Yes We Do!!

Why did the cheerleaders and football players wear their uniforms and jerseys on fall Fridays? Why did so many people dress as nerds or wear orange and black during spirit week? Why did more people than ever view the sports contests after school? Because they were spirited!

There were many other ways to show school spirit. Students joined clubs or organizations. The 50 girl spirit squad cheered us on to V-I-C-T-O-R-Y! The marching band numbered 85 members strong. Other groups such as the pep club and girls league, helped provide students with more than just an academic environment, they helped to make school fun. Spirit was a way for non-competitors to participate in sporting events. Remember the "wave" at the homecoming football game? Did the cheerleaders coax you into screaming for our team? Did you look on or participate in the annual tug-of-war during the spirit week? If you can answer "yes" to any of these questions, "you've got spirit, yes you do!"

An enthusiastic crowd gathers on the front steps at lunch for the Halloween costume contest. John Pacheco and Troy Contestable were the grand prize winners.

Tiffany Kirkbride concentrates on the strategy which the senior team will use to win the annual tug-of-war — STRENGTH!

Scott Elliot knows which team is #1.

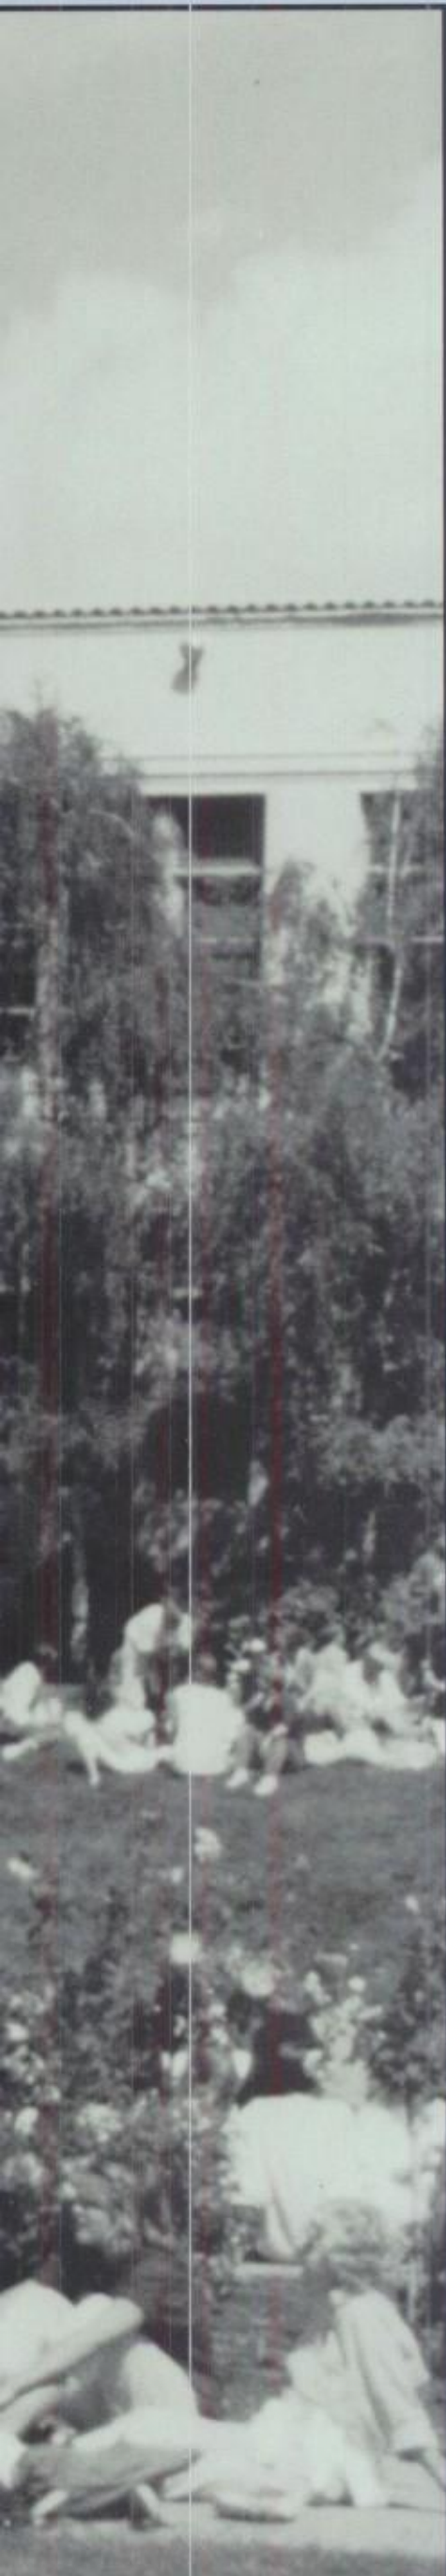

The front lawn is probably the most popular spot to meet friends and talk over.

Steve Madsen and Steve Jackson get in some girl-watching while Nick Nordenfelt tries in vain to quiz them for the test next period.

Julie Hedricks, Tiffany Kirkbride, and Heidi Meinzer laugh because Dave Berry isn't going to stop tickling Tracy Abernathy until he gets his Coke back.

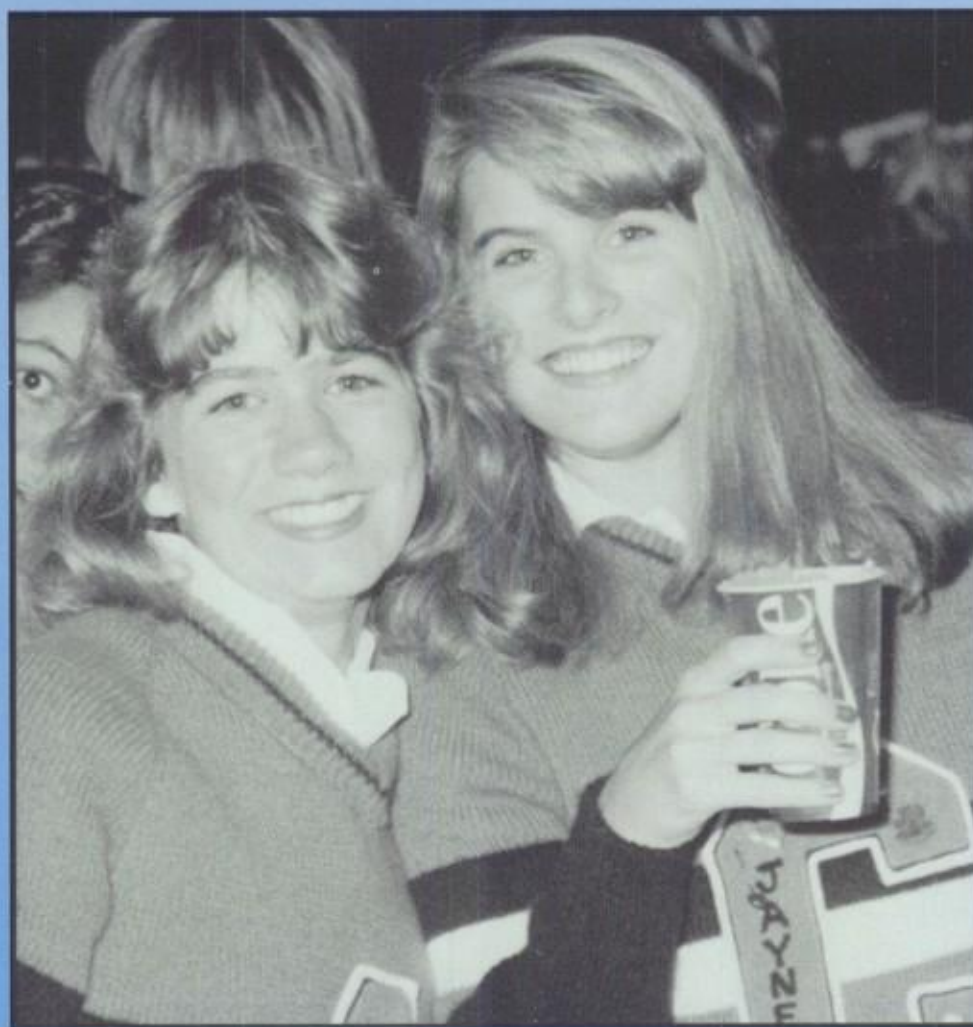

Someone To Share Your M&M's With

What would we have done without that shoulder to lean on? Friends were more than just someone to talk with. They were people, people that you could communicate with, people with whom you shared a common interest, goal, or problem. Friends came and went, but there was always someone that was there all through high school. Those were the "best" of friends, the ones that shared in your joys and sorrows or trusted you with that certain secret. A friend was someone who made things like studying, eating lunch, and shopping more fun.

We also established friendships with members of the faculty. The staff was ready and willing to supply that extra help or encouragement whenever possible. Some students even returned after graduation to visit their former mentors.

After high school, when we moved on to bigger and better things we may have lost touch with some of our old friends. Friends may not always be with us physically, but they have left upon us a lasting impression.

Music Fills the Air

Bill Kelly and Al Kline of KWSS (94.5 FM) remind us how popular "The Boss" Bruce Springsteen is this year.

Everyone listened to music. It was around us everywhere we went. From elevators to department stores, or anywhere you could carry a portable radio, music varied as much as its listeners did, and our school followed the music scene.

The popularity of certain types of music depended on where you stood on the music spectrum. Some liked it hot with the top 40 stars like Howard Jones, Wham, Duran Duran, Phil Collins, and Depeche Mode. UB40 was among the many popular reggae groups. On the harder rock side, Rush, Robert Plant, and Van Halen were among those at the top of the charts.

How did these groups get to the top of the charts? Exposure! MTV was a popular medium for selling a band. Radio stations also had a lot to do with promoting groups. Who were those people who went to work at 5:00 A.M. just to get you up for school? People like Bill Kelly and Al Kline of KWSS radio made your morning wake-up a little smoother. When asked how many listeners the comedy duo had, their producer, Michele Allen replied, "At least 70," but after a little digging it was revealed that their show reaches over

177,000 people a week! The team was responsible for such characters as the "Godfather," "Mr. Lucky," and "Sleezo the Clown." With two crazy guys like those at the controls, there was no telling what might happen. One day the "Godfather" made his early morning wake-up call to a less than happy victim who shouted some obscenities on the air. "All of the phone lines lit up instantly even the business lines," said Kline. "It was a good thing the boss missed it!"

The cat, KATD (95.3FM), played much the same kind of music, but a lot closer to home. The new station took over the KRVE building on No. Santa Cruz Avenue and KATD literally grew every day in popularity. Steve Behm was the "master blaster, playing the records and shooting the breeze." With the news and traffic man, Jim Taylor, he encouraged people to walk or drive by and wave, smile, or honk. One thing that these two enjoyed was girl watching. "I think the girls that go to Los Gatos High School are good-looking," said "Beamer." "In fact, there were two girls that walked by every morning that I wished would stop in for a cup of coffee or something!"

Steve Behm of KATD spins disks every weekday morning at the North Santa Cruz Avenue studio.

Howard Jones' records and concert tour are very popular thanks to hit songs like "Life in One Day" and "Things Can Only Get Better."

George Michael of Wham took his group to the Orient for that culture's first taste of Western music. He produced hits like "Wake Me Up Before You Go Go" and "Freedom".

The walls at the KWSS studios are filled with popular record jackets and posters. How many do you recognize?

Scott Green shows us how the pros do it!

Steve Zilliox spends many weekends getting his '67 Pontiac LeMans tuned to perfection.

During Disneyland's 30th anniversary this year, they gave away nearly 30,000 brand new automobiles and many thousands of other prizes. Every 30th person was a winner.

"Everybody's Workin' For the Weekend ..."

When that final bell sounded at 3:15 on Friday, most people wasted no time in getting their weekend started. Whether you were getting ready for work, a date, a party, or just for relaxing, everyone looked forward to those two days away from school. Weekends gave us the time to do the things we didn't normally have time for during the week. We went to the movies, we liked to go shopping, we worked on our cars, or drove them around.

We were very fortunate to live in the Bay Area. No matter what we wanted to do, fun was at most a few hours away. Where else could you be at the beach one day and then be enjoying some of the world's best skiing the next?

What would we have done without those two days to catch up on those missed homework assignments or the time to prepare that speech? Weekends were something to look forward to, but they gave us something to dread — Mondays!

Kevin Jakey says the skiing conditions at Squaw Valley are "OK" before challenging the advanced ski run, Siberia.

A view like this makes it worth the drive to Lake Tahoe for a weekend camping trip.

Juniors Make the Grade

Life as a junior was no bed of roses. There was so much to do in so little time! The pressure was on to get good grades in order to be accepted at the best college. Worst of all, juniors faced the grand American tradition of taking the S.A.T.

Juniors struggled to gain independence. For many that meant getting their first car. They started to realize that there would be life after high school and investigated career possibilities by getting afterschool jobs.

Vinnie Nola, Gary Norquist, Gregg Bobis, and Jim Rocchio try to avoid the attack of the seagulls.

Margo Halloran begs Mark Dadgar for two dimes.

Francine Hirsch sculpts the next Venus de Milo.

"Mm, Mm, good!", says Kirsten Schipper.

Melinda Smith, Stisa Pasternak, Jenni Huff, and Erin Bush get into the spirit at the football game against Saratoga.

Juniors Add to Upper Class

Sara Loizeaux keeps an eye on Frank Harbaugh.

Todd Sinclair studies to keep up his grade point average.

Spirited Kristy Shelton cheers the team on to victory.

Reality Begins Here

The sophomore year was one which required more work and more effort. But, in return, sophomores began to experience recognition in social society, whether it was with a peer group, or with a special friend. They were rewarded for their efforts by receiving privileges, like driving a car, but at the same time developed responsibilities, such as finding jobs to support their cars or social habits.

The term "sophomore" in literal translation mean "wise fool." In essence, this described a student that was not yet at the top of the school's social spectrum, but had proven himself or herself enough to advance beyond the title of "rookie."

Many people, like Karyn Samuelson and Holly Kratt, enjoy eating lunch in the inner quad.

When it comes to making funny faces, Jay Campbell and Dan Dresti have to hand it to Jon Field.

Aaron Blanding's attention is caught by a group of passing girls.

Lee Ould, Nathan Wheat, Geoff Griffin and Peter Howarth chase after their Hackey Sack.

Just thinking of the weekend is reason enough for Robin Reynolds to smile.

Breanna Baggett says "The box stops here", as she shares a drink with her friends Corey Larsen, Aelyn Bliss, and Amy Barrett at lunch time.

Sophomores Wise Up

Krista Soulages, Diana Humphrey, and Michael Lopp ponder the upcoming football game.

Ann Parkin crams at the last minute for an exam.

Chris Cook and Christy Crane can't believe they ate the whole thing.

Julie Thomas finds it a little difficult to study during lunch.

Freshmen Survive in Spite of It All

Everyone knew what it was like to be a freshman, except the freshman himself. However, this did not mean that sympathy was to be expected. Upperclassmen, who were once freshmen, weren't thought of or treated any differently when they were in the same position. The status, or lack of any, of being a freshman was expected and then endured.

Freshmen took heart in the fact that the possibility of surviving did exist. Throughout the first year, catastrophe, embarrassment, and frustration may have struck. Freshmen spent their year learning to adapt to crowded lockers, confronting upperclassmen, and making new friends. To some, the new high school environment was threatening the whole year through. Others discovered that by keeping a low profile, they could avoid many discomforts of freshman life. More importantly, freshmen found they could rely on each other for support. New friends and old friends alike helped make this possible. Old friends created an air of familiarity in a foreign place. Making a new friend allowed freshmen to grow, reach out, and learn from each other.

Having survived the freshman year themselves, upperclassmen set the all important example. From this example, freshmen learned to adapt, to rely on each other, and to relax.

Bryan Ross listens intently as Will Pedersen shares an account of his morning's classes.

Scott McCain directs the attention of Chris Cronk, Tory Golino, and Richard Carlson to the girls in the inner quad.

Stephanie Siemiller and Lori Diven show that new friends are easy to make if you're a freshman with a smile.

The library is filled with students such as Jennifer Bray, who spends her lunch time here for extra studying.

Richelle Masuda, Brigid Bannan, and Valerie Glass relax together. The three enjoy their lunch outdoors in spite of the cold November weather.

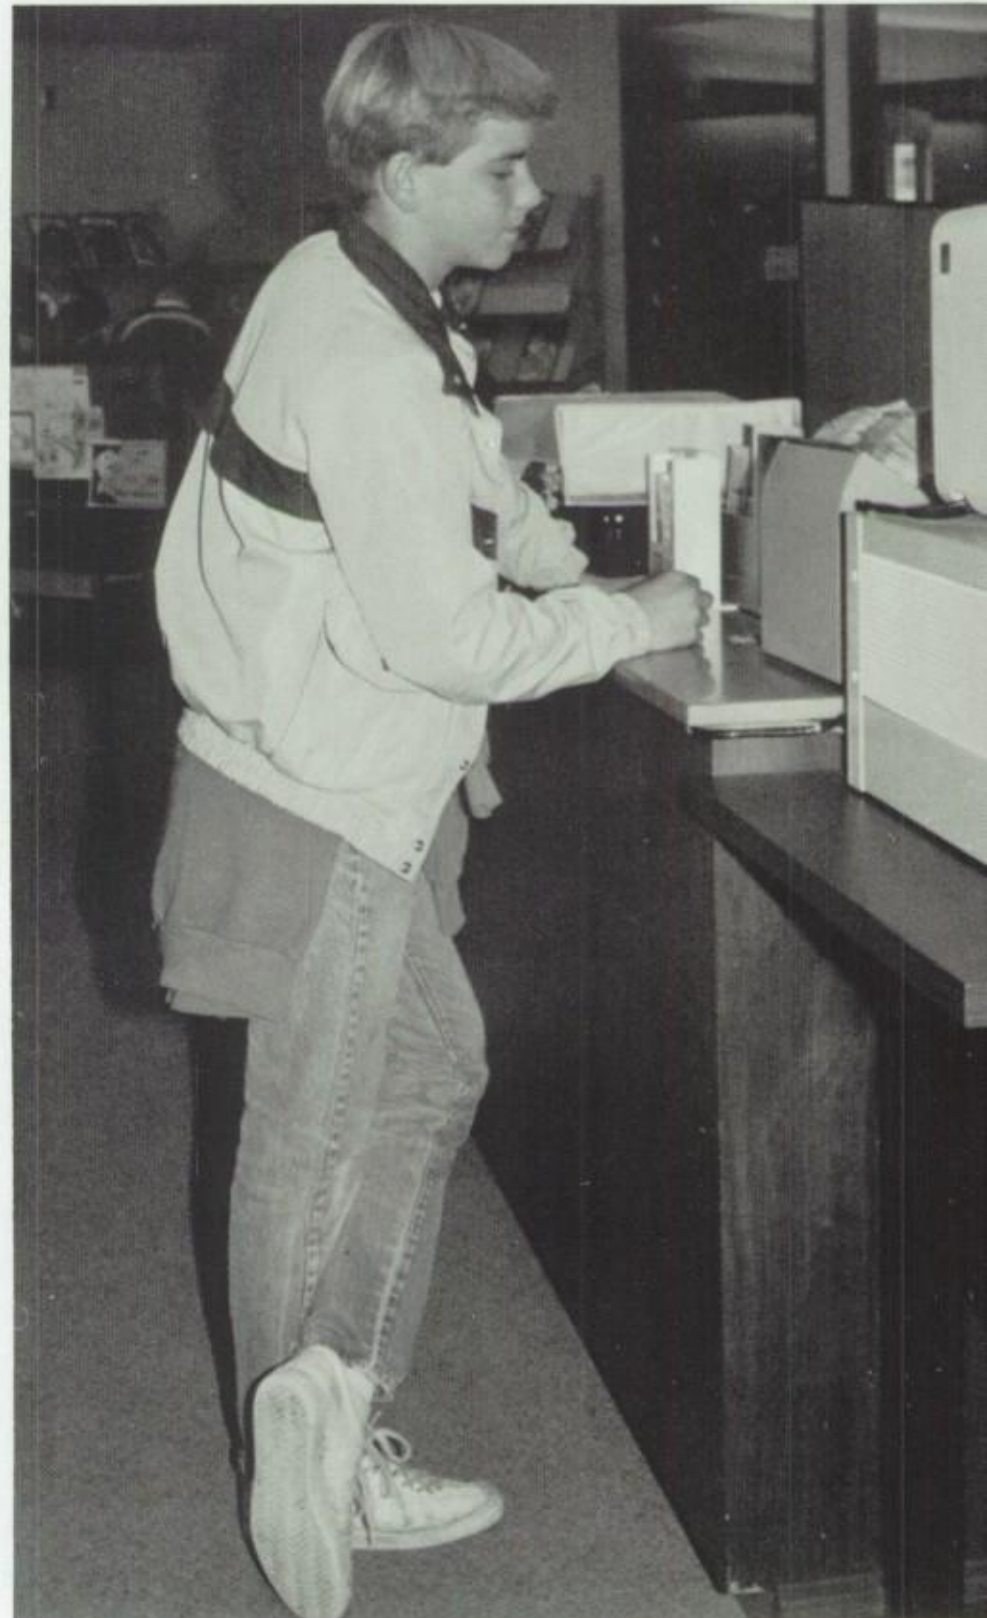

Freshmen Learn To Face Facts

Jeannine Barcarse, Kerri Stone, and Alison Darmes keep a low profile during the busy lunch scene.

Scott McCain provides his own transportation. His early arrival shows that he has adapted to the limited parking for bicycles.

Jason Barth makes use of the library's resources and benefits from its newly computerized system.

Work Experience

Dedication: and the Winner is Ralph Aguayo!

Tony Chiala listens to Mr. Aguayo's opinion about Shaw Dunton's slab box.

Mr. Aguayo's students and friends surround him for a "family" portrait.

Ralph Aguayo had taught at Los Gatos High School for only three and a half years, but in that time he made more friends than many teachers ever made. Besides teaching ceramics, Mr. Aguayo also was head of the art club. He was a big help in organizing the "Jam-Men for Art" dances that helped to raise the money needed to turn the old art office into a beautiful art gallery.

One of the reasons students liked Mr. Aguayo so much was because he talked to them and treated them with care and feeling. If someone had a problem, personal or otherwise, Mr. Aguayo wanted to help and to see the problem through until it was solved. Students trusted him and could talk with him on a personal level. The atmosphere of his classroom made it easy, and fun, to learn and to get work done. He allowed students to call him by his first name.

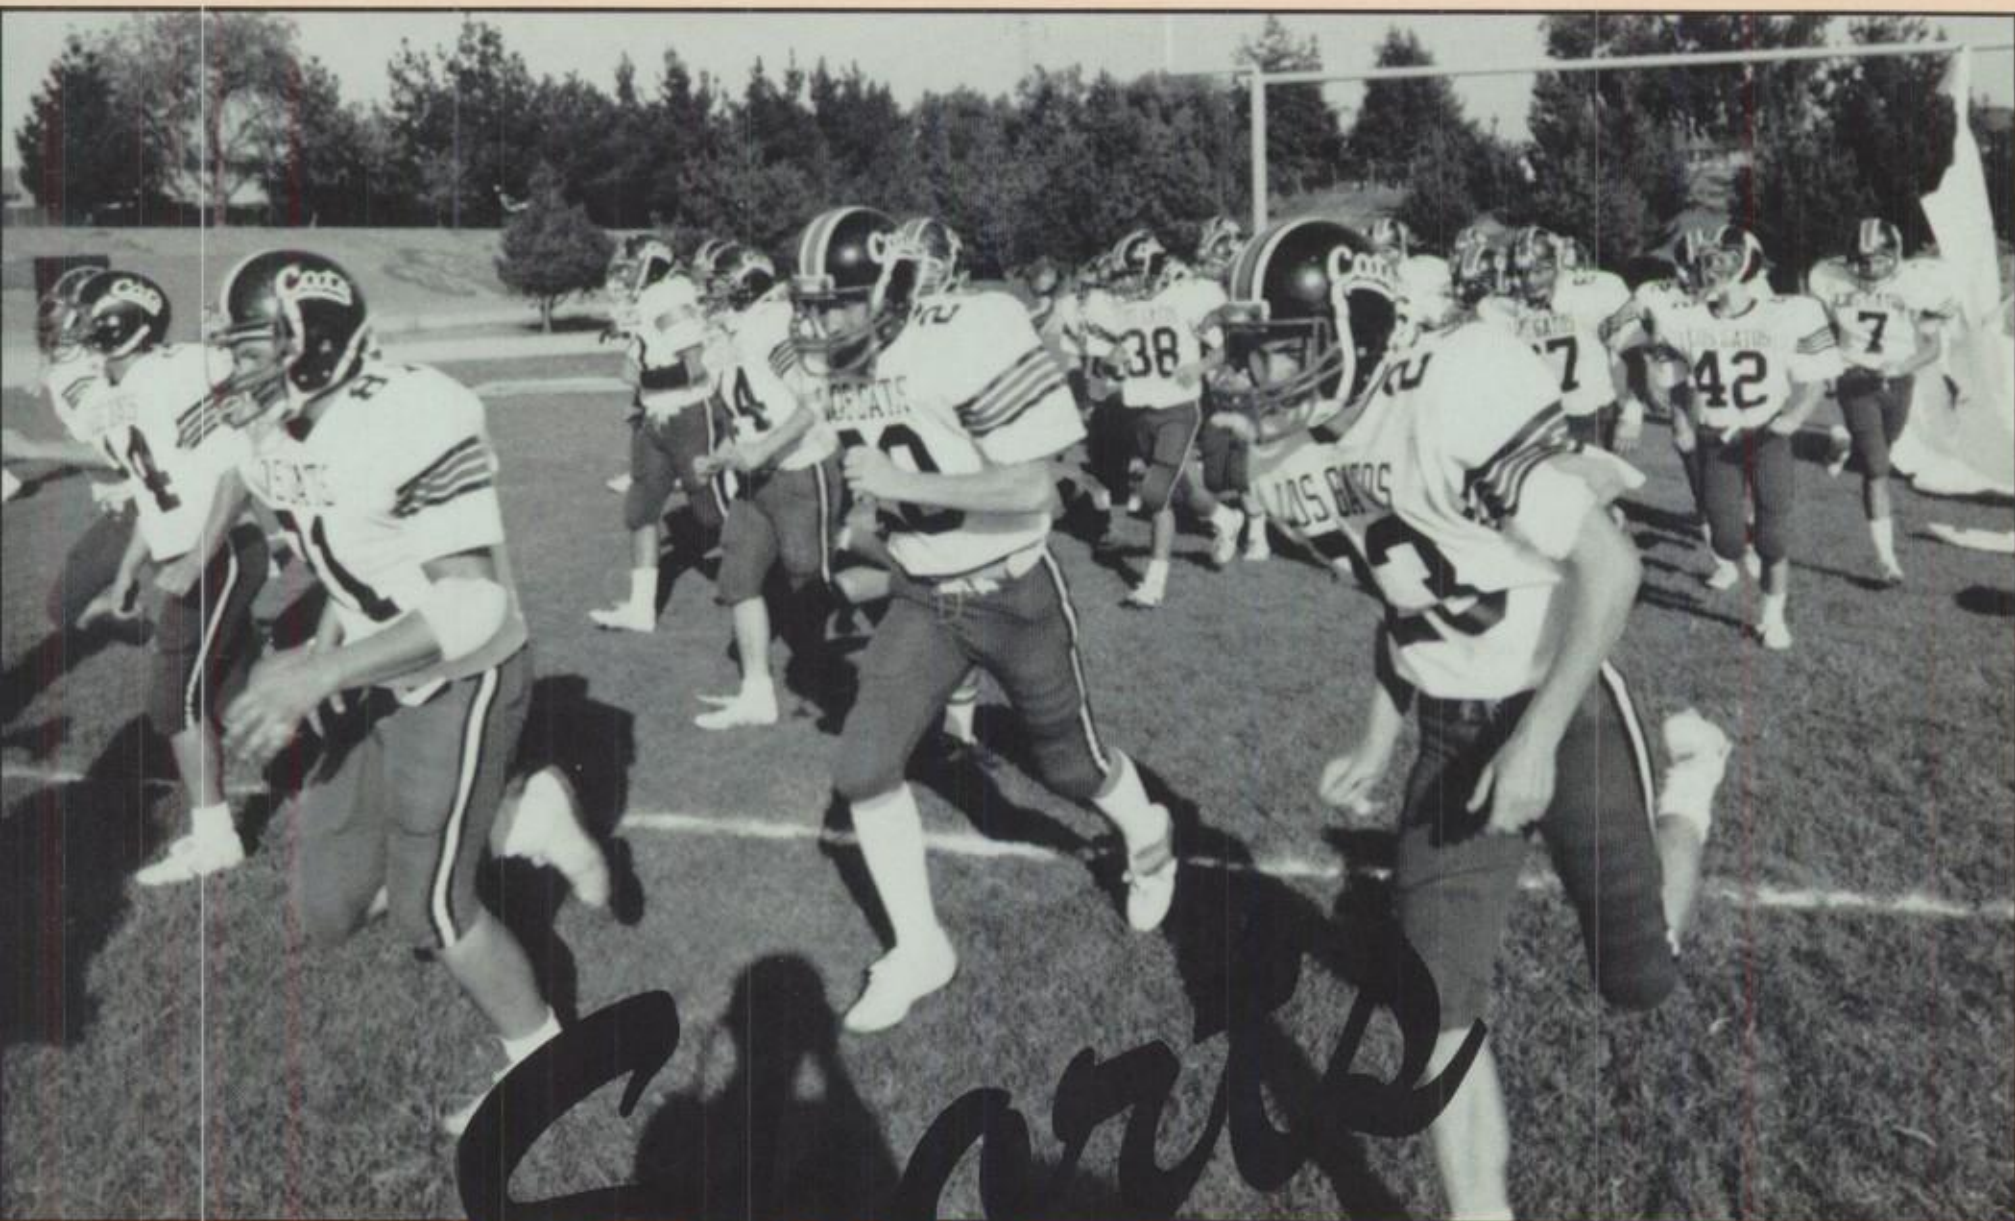

He allowed the radio to be played, but only if everyone was busy creating things and was quiet. He often encouraged people to explore the depths of their minds when an idea was needed for a project instead of just giving his own suggestions.

Mr. Aguayo wanted more than a student-teacher relationship with his kids; he made the effort to get to know each individual, and some individuals made the effort to know him. He was the kind of man who would stay hours after school or come on Saturdays to give the "artists" in his classes some extra time to create that perfect "masterpiece."

The class of 1986 was proud and honored to dedicate the 1986 Wildcat to Los Gatos High School's own "masterpiece," Mr. Ralph Aguayo.

SWIMMING

Swim Team Dubbed 'Awesome!'

The girls swim team started their season's practice a week before the school year began. The team at that time numbered seventy-two.

The first event of the year was the Swim-a-thon which raised a total for $3000 to go towards sweat suits. An amazing $312 was raised alone by Galen Warner.

Both teams this year were very strong. The junior varsity went undefeated for the third year in a row and cremated all of their opponents by no less than forty-one points. Coach Bingman described this year's swim team as "Awesome!" The varsity team did very well placing second in the West Valley Athletic League, losing only to Prospect.

A new school record of one minute, nine seconds was set by the junior varsity 200 medley relay team of Bonnie Poytress, Anne Shaw, Lori Reynolds, and Kristin Boger.

There were five outstanding seniors who graduated this year and who contributed a lot to the team during their years at Los Gatos. Those five were Diane Barrera, Julie Yamato, Joy Williams, Kara Evers and Diane Aymond. Aymond summed up the season by saying, "We worked hard, we earned everything we got."

DIVING

Girls Spring Into Action

The girls on this year's diving team did spring into action — they sprang all the way into the CCS Finals! Amy Dalziel, the captain of the team, placed first at CCS, and Shannon Mister placed sixteenth.

Our team was very successful at the league finals as well. Amy Dalziel placed first again; Shannon Mister placed third; and Amy Fowler placed seventh.

All of the hard workouts paid off. The girls would practice every day after school for about two hours. It took much skill for the girls to go as far as they did.

When asked what diving felt like, Amy Dalziel responded by saying, "It has a certain amount of fear, then excitement, and then there is the sensation of overcoming something."

VOLLEYBALL

Volleyball Sets Up for Win

The volleyball team had a productive year in 1985. The team consisted of many valuable players such as Nicole Zalesny and Joy Osborne. Nicole's height and speed contributed to the team's success. The team had many other fine athletes including Lisa Kellogg, Shannon Napier and Robyn Storney. Kelli Morris, one of the starters on the junior varsity team said "Although the varsity and junior varsity teams do not practice together many varsity players help us out by their constant encouragement."

Coach Dougan emphasized the importance of teamwork and fundamentals. Throughout practice he developed drills to make the team a single unit. The varsity team enjoyed a final record of 14 and 6 this year. Hard work, dedication and teamwork all made for a winning team.

GIRLS TENNIS

String Court-et Swings

The girls team this year dominated the WVAL League. They decimated every league opponent 7-0 with a very strong ladder throughout. After winning the WVAL they made it to the finals of CCS after winning several matches, but were runners up due to a loss to Leland.

In the singles tournament of CCS Tiffany Silveria made it to the finals but lost to Iwalani McCalla in three sets. And in the doubles tournament the team of Kelly Goldsboro and Birgit Fink-Jensen lost in the finals to the Leland team 3-6, 6-4, 6-7, with a 7-5 tie breaker in the third set. Coach Denevi was very pleased with the results of the season. He said, "We really had an outstanding season, the girls really worked hard and we won the WVAL by going undefeated."

WATER POLO

H₂O Polo Cuts Waves

Varsity water polo had a tough season. The team, a member of the Santa Teresa League, competed against Willow Glen, Leland, and Bellarmine. The Santa Teresa League, as one of the toughest leagues in CCS, added to the pressures on the team. The whole team was geared towards making the CCS playoffs. According to the league rules, a team's season record has no effect on entering CCS. Therefore, the first and second place teams from the league finals entered CCS regardless of their records.

Coach Mike Belmes mentioned a few key players, Bob Kulick, Hans Schmitt, Paul Worley, who can make four meter goals, and Walt McKnight, who was one of the best goalies in CCS.

The Wildcats had a skilled defense and excellent players. This particular year they allowed a girl to join the team, K.C. More. When asked why she joined the team, K.C. stated, "I wanted to try something new, different, and exciting. I thought it would show other girls not to be afraid to do a so-called boys sport."

Although the team didn't make it to CCS, Belmes commented, "Our defense puts on a very high pressure. If everybody plays right, it works. If one person screw up, it backfires."

Junior varsity had an excellent season. They showed their athletic ability with key players Jason Drew, Jed Mortenson, Matt Madden, Darren Snyder, and Shawn Langlois.

FIELD HOCKEY

Girls Stick It to Them

Take thirty dedicated girls, about 300 combined hours of practice per week, and 105 board feet of lumber and you have the Los Gatos High School field hockey team. The girls practiced every day during the week until 4:30 in the afternoon. The girls practiced with much determination and hard work. When asked about the team, Jen Campsey replied by saying, "We had a really good season this year. I think two of the reasons that we did so well was that we were always willing to work hard, and we worked well together as a team."

This year, Amy Paul and Stacey White were captains of the varsity team. Amy Paul received the captain's award, and Stacey White was selected as the most valuable player. Cathy Cotton was chosen as the most inspirational player.

Jen Campsey and Shannon Coker were captains of the junior varsity team. They both received the captains' award, and were the most valuable players, along with Jennifer Jones.

Although neither team made it to the CCS Finals, the junior varsity field hockey team did make it to the league finals. The girls placed third.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross Country Strives for Success

"The 1985 season was the best one ever for the girls cross country team, not only in Los Gatos history, but in CCS history," said Coach Harmatz. Los Gatos won CCS finals three years in a row; this year we broke the team time record. The team also established a record by winning the Northern California Championship for the second year in a row, this time by a record 44 points.

Senior Monica Daley led the team during all three years as our number one girl. She placed sixth individually in the Northern California meet. The number two girl was sophomore Darcy Parker, and numbers three and four were the freshmen twins, Stephanie and Sara Hartman, who were also the number one and two best freshmen in the meet. The next three girls were senior Ann Wimmer, sophomore Jennifer Joslin, and senior Stacy Harmer.

Until this year no LGHS team had ever dominated CCS for three years in a row in any sport. This team's accomplishments established LGHS in cross country sports.

The junior varsity team begins their warm up.

Sets the Pace

The cross country teams did very well this year, despite speculation by others. They had a team record not to be ashamed of. They won the West Valley Athletic League, regionals, the twenty-eight school Half Moon Bay Invitational, and they won the Palos Verdes Invitational in Los Angeles. They placed third in Central Coast Section and eighth in Northern California. The team was led by senior Scott LaForce, who was remarkable throughout the season. In regionals at Crystal Springs, Scott ran the fastest time in CCS all year on a 3.0 mile course in 14:51, averaging less than five minutes per mile.

Scott was elected MVP for the second year by his team mates. Coach Harmatz commented, "The guys were strong and consistent from the first meet to the last meet." Beating Leigh High School for the WVAL title was one goal, but their main objective was to make it to Nor — Cal, which they obtained through hard work and individual dedication.

Wildcats Battle into C.C.S.

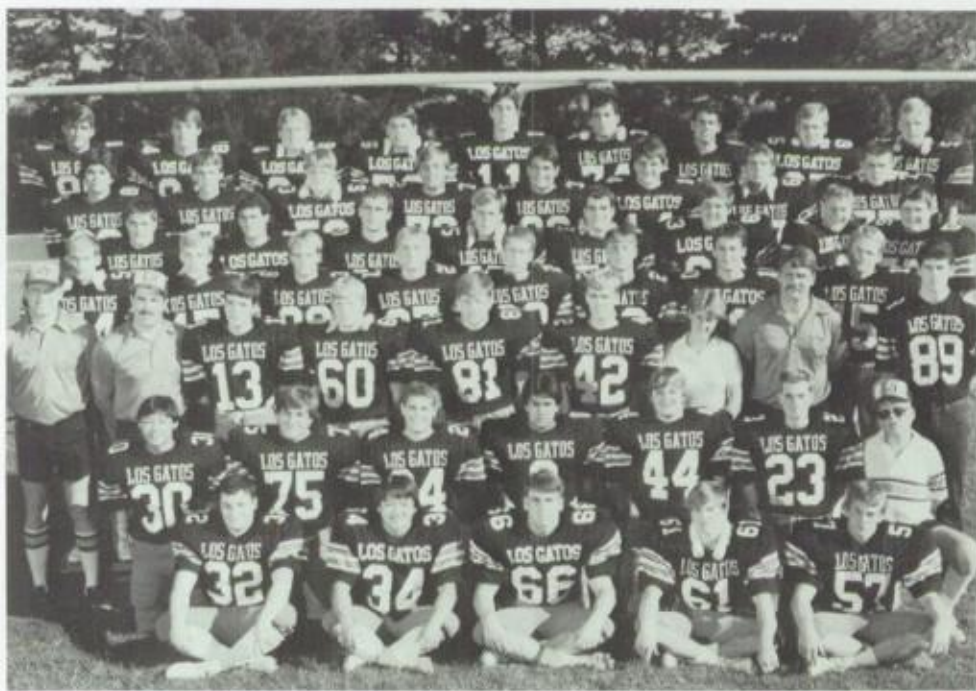

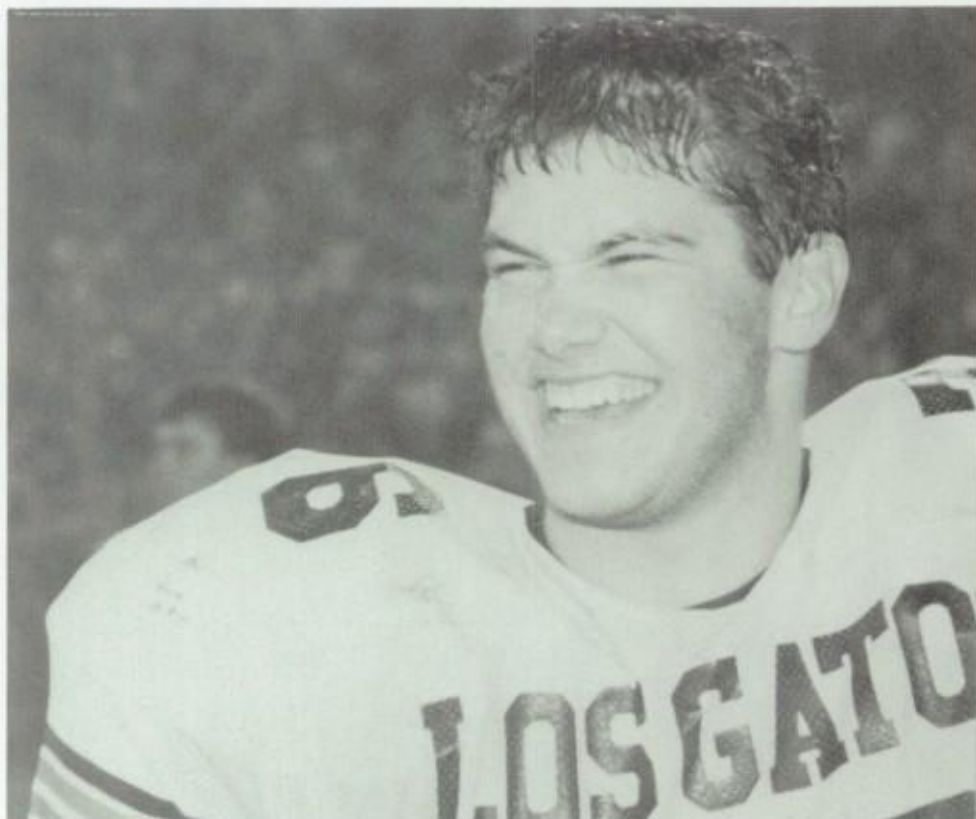

How does one begin to describe the awesome season of our Wildcats? For the first time ever they made it to the top of their league, winning the Central Coast Section (C.C.S.), beating St. Francis in a last minute thriller by a score of 14-12.

Los Gatos lost only one game; the first one of the year. After this loss to Seaside, "the team decided they didn't want to lose anymore," said assistant Coach Butch Cattolico, and they didn't.

The long hours began before school did. The team members lived at school for about a week to attend vigorous workouts every day. Once school began, team members worked out after school every day.

The hard work and dedication paid off for the Wildcats. Senior Jeff Borgese did an outstanding job of running over 1,500 yards, as well as Senior Mike Scialbba who had over 100 unassisted tackles. The Cats won their next 12 games including shutouts against Blackford, Westmont, and Bellarmine in the first round of C.C.S. play-offs. All of this led to the first victory of C.C.S. for the Wildcats and Head Coach Charlie Wedemeyer. Tears of joy flowed from coaches, players, and fans alike after that victory against long time rival St. Francis High School.

This will be a year long remembered by anyone who followed the football scene.

J.V. FOOTBALL

Frosh-Soph Tackles the Odds

While the varsity team was the one which basked in the limelight for most of the season, the Los Gatos frosh-soph football team enjoyed another rigorous season. Despite a discouraging first game, a loss to Seaside 6 to 24, and an unfortunate forfeit to Del Mar, which cost it another win, the team went on to attain a 6-3 record.

Benefiting greatly from the coaching of Mr. Bowman, Mr. Cordoni, Mr. Magagna, and Mr. Sakamoto, the whole team showed true spirit, organization, and determination to win, whether participating on or off the field. The whole season seemed to be summed up by freshman Chris Gutierrez, who stated, "The season turned out to be a lot more successful than could have been predicted from the outcomes of the early games."

Sophomore running back Kale Wedemeyer was decidedly voted the most valuable player on the team, and running back Matt Lemiere and linebackers Shannon Haugen and Jason Lemiere were some of the outstanding freshmen players. These four and all the other players made the 1985 season a success, with the frosh-soph team keeping up the true Los Gatos Wildcat fighting spirit typing for first in the overall team placements.

WRESTLING

Wrestlers Slam to Win

The varsity wrestling team had a fabulous season. The coach of the varsity team, Brian Ganz, strived to make his team work hard in order to achieve their goals. Coach Ganz stated, "My goal as a coach is to teach my wrestlers good sportsmanship, discipline and the basic fundamentals of wrestling. It takes a special individual to be a wrestler, and I believe that if you apply yourself and have faith in what you do, you can do anything."

The junior varsity coach, Russ Leal, helped the junior varsity improve their skills and coordination, therefore building a strong team.

Girls Smash for Action

"I think they are going to be a very powerful team!" exclaimed Coach Matthews. The 1986 badminton team had their first league match on March 18. The girls practiced every school day for approximately two hours.

Coach Matthews felt that some of the best players were Amy Paul, Carolyn Shaw, Loretta O'Donnell, Cara Munson, and Cara Masuda. Amy Paul, Lisa Hall, and Lori Lampson returned to the team from last year.

At the beginning of the year the coach said, "I think we will finish in the top three in league finals."

SOCCER

Teamwork Leads to Victory

The soccer team had a good season. They came out flying with important victories against Saratoga, Leigh, and Del Mar. The season consisted of fourteen league games, which were kicked off by four practice games.

The team was composed of twenty-three girls ranging from freshmen to seniors. They showed great unity and teamwork on and off the field. Team members held meetings during lunch at school and participated everyday after school. The practices consisted of drills, scrimmages, and a lot of effort. This was one of the reasons for the team's success.

Another reason was their ability to work together as one both offensively and defensively. "We have a great group of girls, and they work together really well," stated Coach Lallemand. Through many hours of practice and hard work, this group of girls got teamwork down to an art, which lead them to victory.

Soccer Heads For Goal

The boys soccer team ended their season with a 7-5-4 win-loss record, which placed Los Gatos fourth in the WVAL. Many of the thirty members were returning players, and Luis Ferrer and Irwin Guzman were foreign exchange students. "Our senior fullbacks, Paul Anawalt, Mark Davies, John Whitworth, and Geoff Hawker, all did a great job of keeping the ball on the other side of the field," said Coach Mark Magagna. This was Mark Magagna's first year of coaching the Los Gatos team. "As far as coaching goes, I had a great year," he commented.

The team practiced every day for two hours. The practices started out with warm-ups, stretching, and drills which helped develop ball control. "We have a lot of talent, but in order to win, all the members have to mesh together into a team," said senior Dan Bush. The main purpose of practice was to accomplish this goal, the key to success in soccer. And as Coach Magagna said, "They're a great group of athletes, and they should be proud of what they accomplished this season."

BASKETBALL

Orange Crush Scores in '86

The Los Gatos girls varsity basketball team just missed qualifying for the CCS finals in the 1986 season, placing third in its league with 10 league wins and only four losses. Player Heather Zaknich felt the team's main strength was in its organization and compatibility. "Without the offense and defense being equally strong," she stated, "the team never would have accomplished what it did this season."

The players were honored by Coach John Henry Mackey at the annual Winter Sports Awards Banquet. Seniors Megan Gahr and Jennifer Watanabe were named co-captains of the team, and Junior Zaknich was chosen the most inspirational player. Seniors Erica Donahue and Colleen Evans, sharing the outstanding defensive player award, were also named most valuable player and most improved player, respectively.

The junior varsity team had an outstanding season, placing first in the league with a record of 14 league wins and no losses. At the banquet, Coach Rich Prsha named Joy Osborne the team captain. In addition, Lynette Knackstedt and Michelle Vaccaro shared the most valuable offensive player award, and Heidee Ruiz was chosen most valuable defensive player. Kelli Davies was named most improved player, and Robyn Sturney was named the most inspirational player.

The Orange Crush excelled in the 1986 season, with the varsity team attaining a commendable record of wins, the junior varsity winning every one of its games, and both serving as an inspiration for future teams.

The varsity basketball team was an extremely strong team. There were starters Brian Unger, Chris Wade, Leigh Herring, Steve Magee, Barrett Truluck, Kevin Zaknich and Kent Sakae, who worked together to make a successful year. With the help of Jim Marino, the boys developed their talents and achieved a special team spirit on and off the court.

Along with the varsity's team effort, the junior varsity basketball team had a successful beginning, with starters Toby Carpenter, Eric McClennan, Matt James, Mark Magee, Steve Appleby and Justin Dollard making the shots. When asked about his goal as a coach, Jim Marino commented, "To have a successful season and have the players play to their potential."

TENNIS

Tennis Bounces Back

The boys tennis team, coached by Karen Hughes, had high hopes for the season. The team was composed of eighteen members, many of whom were returning players. Injuries plagued the early season, darkening the hopes of a victorious season. But when three star players returned, it made the team's outlook very promising. "We had a really strong team this year throughout the ladder," said Jeff Stewart.

The team practiced Monday through Thursday, when weather permitted. These practices started out with a five minute run around the tennis courts, which was followed by four sets of wind sprints. Then the members paired up and worked on ball control drills which also helped perfect their form. All this practice was beneficial when the team went up against tough opponents like Saratoga and Bellarmine in nineteen league matches.

SWIMMING

Boys Swim for Success

The Los Gatos varsity and junior varsity swim teams varied their practices and their functions throughout the season. In the beginning of the season, the boys practiced distance swimming. In mid-season, they practiced strokes and middle distances. And at the end, they practiced sprint races. They practiced every day for approximately two and a half hours.

At the beginning of the season, when asked what his goal as a coach was, Mike Belmes said, "My goal as a coach is the same as every coach's: to win league finals in every division." Coach Belmes considered Derek Hutchinson to be the team's best backstroker, Walt McKnight and Hans Schmitt as the best freestylers, Bob Kulick as the best breaststroker, and Doug Winter as the best butterflyer. When asked how the teams would do, Coach Belmes replied, "I think they'll both win league."

With three new members on the diving team, Coach Dez Farnady predicted a great season. The new members were Scott Lisenbee, Scott Goss, and Brent Lowe. For that reason, Coach Farnady only accepted freshman and sophomores as new team members.

Girls Swing For Softball

"It's one of the best teams I've had. They're easy to coach, and learn fast," said Coach Gregorio. This statement reflected the intensity that filled the girls softball team. The team was a mixture of all years, from freshman to seniors. Last year, the team was not able to have any practice games. This year, Coach Gregorio set up five or six scrimmages. He thought it would make the team better prepared and help them to know what they were up against.

The softball team practiced two hours every day after school. Coach Gregorio tried his best to train players in positions that would soon fill empty spaces left by players who graduated. Shelli Eller was the outstanding pitcher, and she also played third base. The star players were Kerry Griffin, first base; Noelle Krzich, catcher; and Margaret Byrnes, center. Coach Gregorio said proudly, "I think we'll be competing for first place."

BASEBALL

Baseball Hits It Off

In the 1986 season, varsity coaches Joe Winstead and Wayne Senini used the practice games to experiment with certain players in certain positions to see which combinations would prove the strongest for the team. Winstead remarked, "The team has shown great improvement after each of the early games it played, and I think it will be a good season. The team, I expect, will finish at least in the middle of its league this season." From the first three league games, the team indeed seemed to be heading for a successful season.

The varsity lost its first league game against Prospect 11-6, but the team made up for this loss with two wins, beating both Branham, 11-2, and Blackford, 15-9. Among the prominent players in these games were seniors Leigh Haring and Jeff Milham, juniors Jeff Brennan and Don Puma, and sophomore Greg Bowman.

The junior varsity team, coached by Brian Powers, lost its first two games to Prospect and Branham but beat Blackford. Chris Gutierrez explained, "The team is young and not totally developed."

GIRLS TRACK

Girls Run One Step Ahead

The results at the Kiwanis-Bellarmine track meet at San Jose City College were evidence that the Los Gatos girls track team, led by coaches Willie Harmatz and Joy Umpshaw, was in good form and headed for an excellent season.

Suza Patteri, an exchange student from Finland, placed first in the long jump and broke the school record for that competition. Heidee Ruiz, the sophomore shot-putter, runner, and long-jumper, broke her own record putting the shot. Ruiz also participated with Karrie Rexford, Stacy Kuehnis, and Lezli Jensen in the 440-relay, breaking their season best time, and also with Kuehnis, Rexford, and Lynn Ruolo in the mile-relay, placing third.

Stacy Kuehnis finished third in the low 330 hurdles. Monica Daley, a strong runner from past seasons, took second place in both the mile and two-mile events. Karrie Rexford won the 440, and high-jumper Alisa Wade cleared the five-foot mark to catch first place.

This first big invitational was a good indication that, if the girls kept up the same results, the team would have a chance to compete in the CCS finals. "We've been working really hard," stated junior Kari Compton, "and we have a lot of new talent this year. The team is strong, so it should be a good season."

Jennifer Barnhart, Nicole Daugherty, and Andrea Meinhardt struggle in their last strides toward the finish line.

BOYS TRACK

Boys Track 'em Down

The varsity boys track team was headed for another successful season in 1986. The team started its season with victories over such teams as those from Gunn, Saratoga, Gunderson, and Blackford. Superstar runners Eric Wendling and Scott LaForce were expected to lead the team, but other main strengths on the team in the early meets included senior runner Pat More, junior runners Mark Dadgar and Robb McCormick, and junior triple-jumper Chris Ouellette. Senior Kevin Rankin, an exchange student from Switzerland, placed highly in the pole-vault event. Teammate Ray DeBenedetto made a prediction for the season, "Although smaller than last year's team, this team displays a lot of ability; I believe it will register highly in the final placements."

The junior varsity team also had an early string of wins over Blackford, Gunn, and Saratoga. With such talents as pole-vaulters Kale Wedemeyer and Kent Kappen, long and triple-jumper Joe Kogut, and runner Keith Diesner, the team's prospects for a high league placement seemed probable.

Academics

The student's rolling eyeballs bulged wildly as the teacher left the room and entered the science office. Suddenly, he leaned towards his best friend. "Dude, let me see your test for a quick sec." The friend's face turned stark red as he glanced frantically at the door. "Come on dude, just for a sec!"

"Ahhh, yeah o.k., but hurry up." He passed his test across the aisle; sweat dripped down the side of his face as he quickly raised his head to check the doorway again. Pressure to cheat. Most everyone who cheated knew that it was wrong, yet they did it anyway.

The first and worst of all frauds is to cheat one's self." . . . Randolf Bailey

The usual excuse was that saying no to a best friend would scar their relationship.

The problem of cheating escalated tremendously due to the increased amount of pressure put upon students from their parents and themselves to succeed.

Many parents came down extremely hard on their kids if they brought home a low grade. One junior confessed, "I've never been really good in math, but do my parents know that? I've been cheating in math for the past year, I can't stop now. If I bring home a bad grade, I'm totally dead."

In addition to parental influence, many students put additional pressure upon themselves to get into college and live up to what seemed to be expected of them in such an affluent community. It was a pressure that many could not alleviate.

"Sometimes I feel forced into it," said one student. "Like the time in Latin when I totally forgot about a test. I didn't know what to do; I had to cheat!"

The problem that parents and teachers were more concerned with, though, was the change of attitude towards cheating. The students were not worried about the morality of cheating; they were more concerned with possibilities of getting caught. One teacher commented, "The ends don't justify the means. Parental pressure or any other type of pressure for that matter should not be of influence. For example, what if a student cheats in high school and then gets into say, Stanford; what is he going to do then, cheat some more? One day it will catch up with him."

Dan Hastings and Henry Smith volunteer to demonstrate that it's almost impossible to predict a cheater.

Kevin Doyle volunteers to demonstrate one of the most popular methods of cheating, hiding a "cheat sheet" in one's lap. Pressure to succeed drives many into desperation.

Study habits are something

Like Diamonds

Diversity was the key word in describing people and their study habits. Almost every student had a set, daily pattern in which they did, or sometimes did not do, their homework. Many studied intensely; "I hate doing homework," admitted David Minkus, "yet I try to make it as fun as possible. It doesn't matter how late I stay up."

David Minkus demonstrates his long practiced study habits at one in the morning as he listens to the Fixx and gulps down his third cup of coffee.

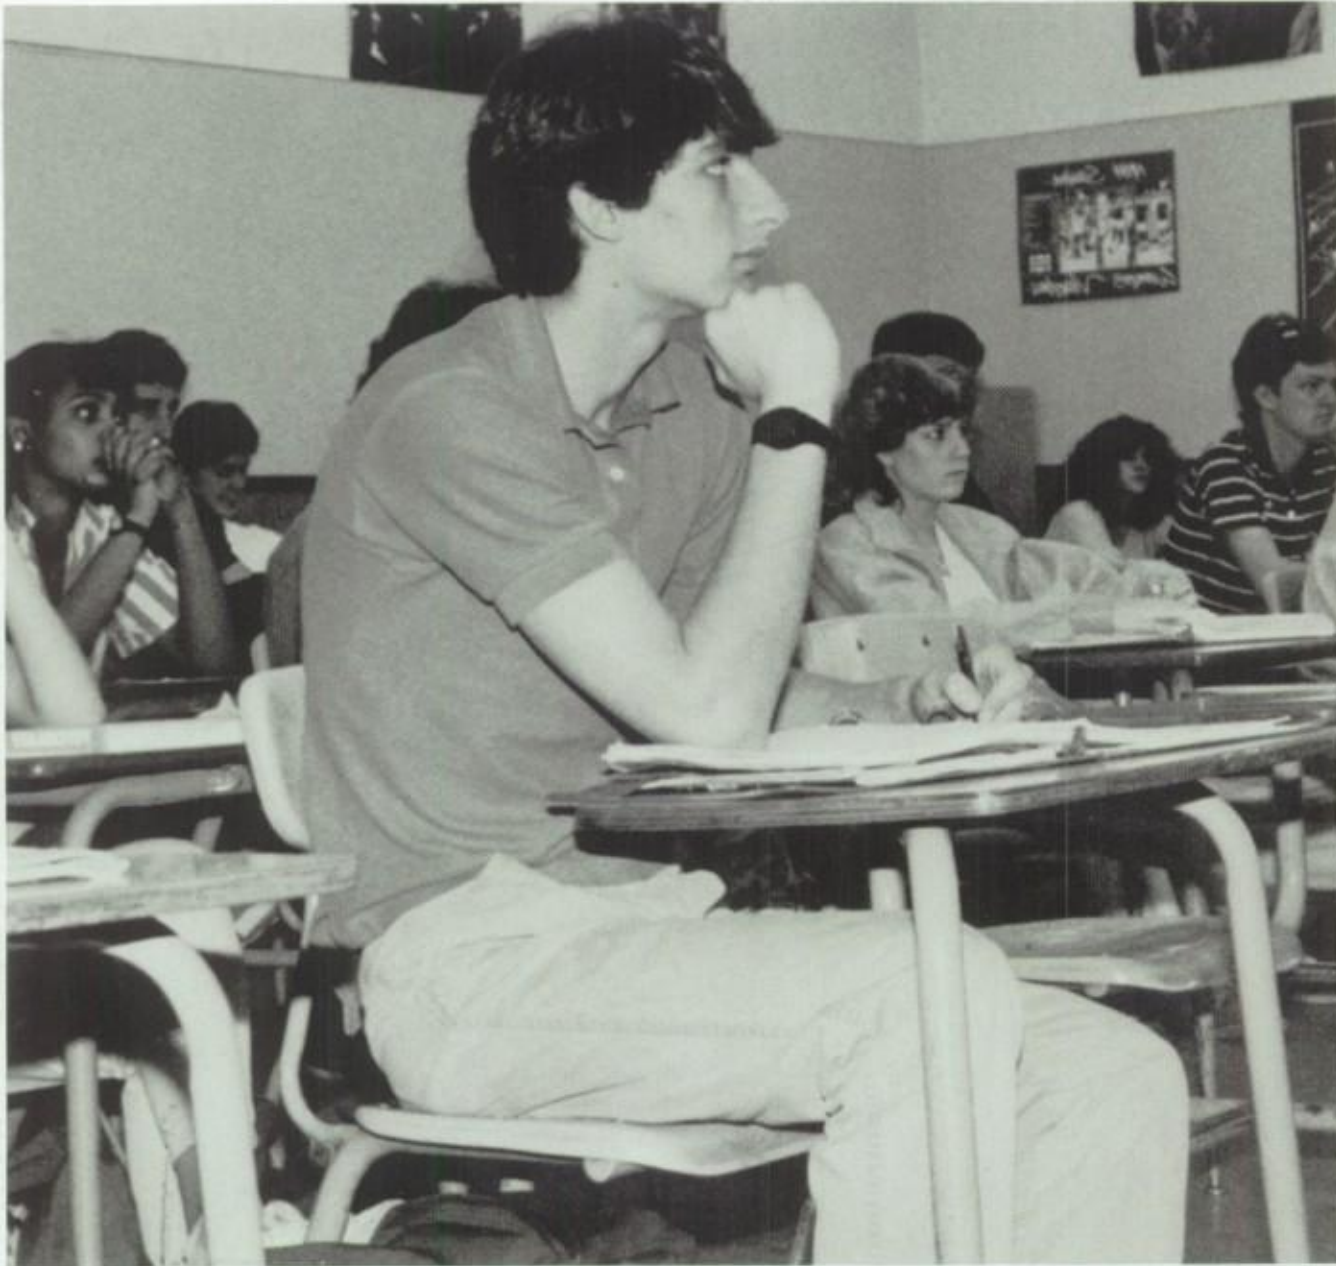

Yet many studied uniquely; "Baroque music is great to listen to," commented John Derryberry, "because it's mathematically correct, inspirational, and because it has no lyrics, it's not distracting."

And some rarely studied; "I usually get home pretty late from work, and by that time I really don't feel like doing anything. So if I do study, it's about thirty seconds worth," confessed Kris McGinnis.

Cheating on exams becomes customary for many students in order to receive a passing grade.

Students often ask their friends to save their homework and tests from the previous year. For many doing their homework becomes a simple task.

Mr. Dougan's lecture on the effects of heredity on human behavior fascinates Kevin Murphy.

History seemed to be a process of trial and error; everything from governments and cultures to mutiny and rebellion had been experimented with. But the only way to create the "ultimate" society was to know what works and what didn't. This was why social studies was so important. Both world history and American history study of how our economy was held together, and the study of our government did not teach history, yet they were all part of the social sciences. These classes gave seniors information and experiences that helped them to understand themselves and the world they lived in.

Then there were also classes like focused on these ideas and stressed the cause and effect aspects of history and the development of governmental values.

Social studies was not just history though. This was discovered by seniors when they enrolled in classes such as psychology, economics, and civics. The study of the mind, the 1985-1986 was a year of tragedy, grief, and historical events. We all thought the worst was over when all the fires around California were finally out, but on September 19, an earthquake hit Mexico City devastating the city and surrounding area. Then on November 13, Nevado del Ruiz near Bogota, Columbia, erupted, spewing ashes and rock over acres of fertile fields. Throughout the world people jumped to the aid of those in need, and even around school collections were made. On January 26, the tragedy struck a little closer to home when the space shuttle, Challenger, exploded instantly killing all seven crew members including the first teacher in space, Christa McAuliffe, before the shocked eyes of millions of schoolchildren and admirers.

Astronauts Ellison S. Onizuka, Christa McAuliffe, Gregory B. Jarvis, Judith A. Resnik, Michael J. Smith, Francis R. Scobee, and Ronald McNair were all members of the Challenger crew who died in the explosion on Jan. 28, 1986 at 11:39 a.m.

From the earthquake in Mexico, to the volcano in Columbia, to the explosion of the Challenger, we all wept over the misery of those who died and those who were left behind.

If one wanted an easy class, journalism was not the class to take! The group of dedicated editors, writers, and reporters progressed into professionals who cared about the quality of their work. Installation of a new drafting table helped make their jobs easier, but their most important investment was time — journalists stayed at school till eight or nine at night every few days before the "El Gato" was released. This dedication enhanced the old eight page paper of the past, transforming it into an innovative twelve page publication.

Who ever said that we never change? For the first time in twenty-five years, the English department unanimously revised the curriculum by establishing a core structure to model the state's recommendations.

The core was designed to encourage outside reading and to advance the students' knowledge of grammar, literature, and composition. A standard literature selection, including one novel and one play, was established for each grade level to in-hours in evaluating the materials which they felt would best benefit the students: over fourteen different grammar books and seven literature books were reviewed before the final selections were made. In addition, Mrs. Wickett was given a summer grant to help prepare all new pre — and post — tests for the new curriculum.

The new textbooks were not the only learning aid used. Many teachers incorporated video cassettes into their sure that every student was given an equal education. For example, every sophomore was required to read The Pearl and “Julius Caesar” while every junior read Huckleberry Finn and “Our Town.” Once these selections were added to the curriculum, teachers were allowed to teach any additional selections they wished. Many of the 9a classes, for example, also read To Kill a Mockingbird.

The teachers spent painstaking

Could Emerson have been right when he said, "The civilized man has built himself a coach, but has lost the use of his feet. He is supported by crutches, but lacks so much support of muscle?" It seemed that way from the math teachers' point of view. The use of calculators for mathematics reached an all-time high as students strived to earn a good grade in trigonometry and calculus. Teachers weren't even teaching the students how to use the trigonometric tables given to them in the back of their books. For many, getting the correct answer was as simple as hitting a few numbers and then "sin" or "cos" on their life-saving machines. Mathematics wasn't the only subject, though, in which calculators were used. An aura of intelligence and power loomed whenever they were near, and, for many, intimidation struck. No one knew that they would invade and take over the youth of our classrooms within a year, surrounding the students in great numbers and cramming their knowledge into the future leaders of our country. But soon the invasion had begun, and their leader, Mr. Sakamoto, was determined! He planned for the first time to use Apple time in developing a new math course called math applications. The course was designed for those students who needed a second year of math but were weak in algebra. The course taught the students skills which they could use out in the real world, such as balancing a check book or buying a house.

Math teacher Mr. Shulte also designed and started a math class, fundamentals of math, which helped computers to mold his new students. He designed a program that would allow students to work with the computers at their own pace. Once a student felt confident with a certain objective, he or she could then take a test and go on. The program cost over $5,000 to set up.

In a few short years, though, the personal computer expanded to more areas than ever imagined, including our science department. After only one year of teaching here, Mrs. Wendell, a chemistry teacher, gave us something by which to remember her. During the year, Mrs. Wendell prepared a state grant proposal for Apple computers to be used by our science department, the first science related request the state had received. By the end of the summer, the grant was accepted and the first batch of computers was sent along with plenty of software and two printers. Not only did these computers aid the students and teachers in gathering data, graphing, and analyzing statistics, but they also saved the teachers hours in calculating grades and typing up tests and assignments. The teacher of the class, Mr. Verkuyl, spent nearly $400 dollars at the beginning of the year on tulips and daffodils so the students would have enough materials with which to work. After the flowers bloomed, the students sold them to the faculty in order to raise money for the following year.

A student's knowledge is enhanced by that of the Teacher

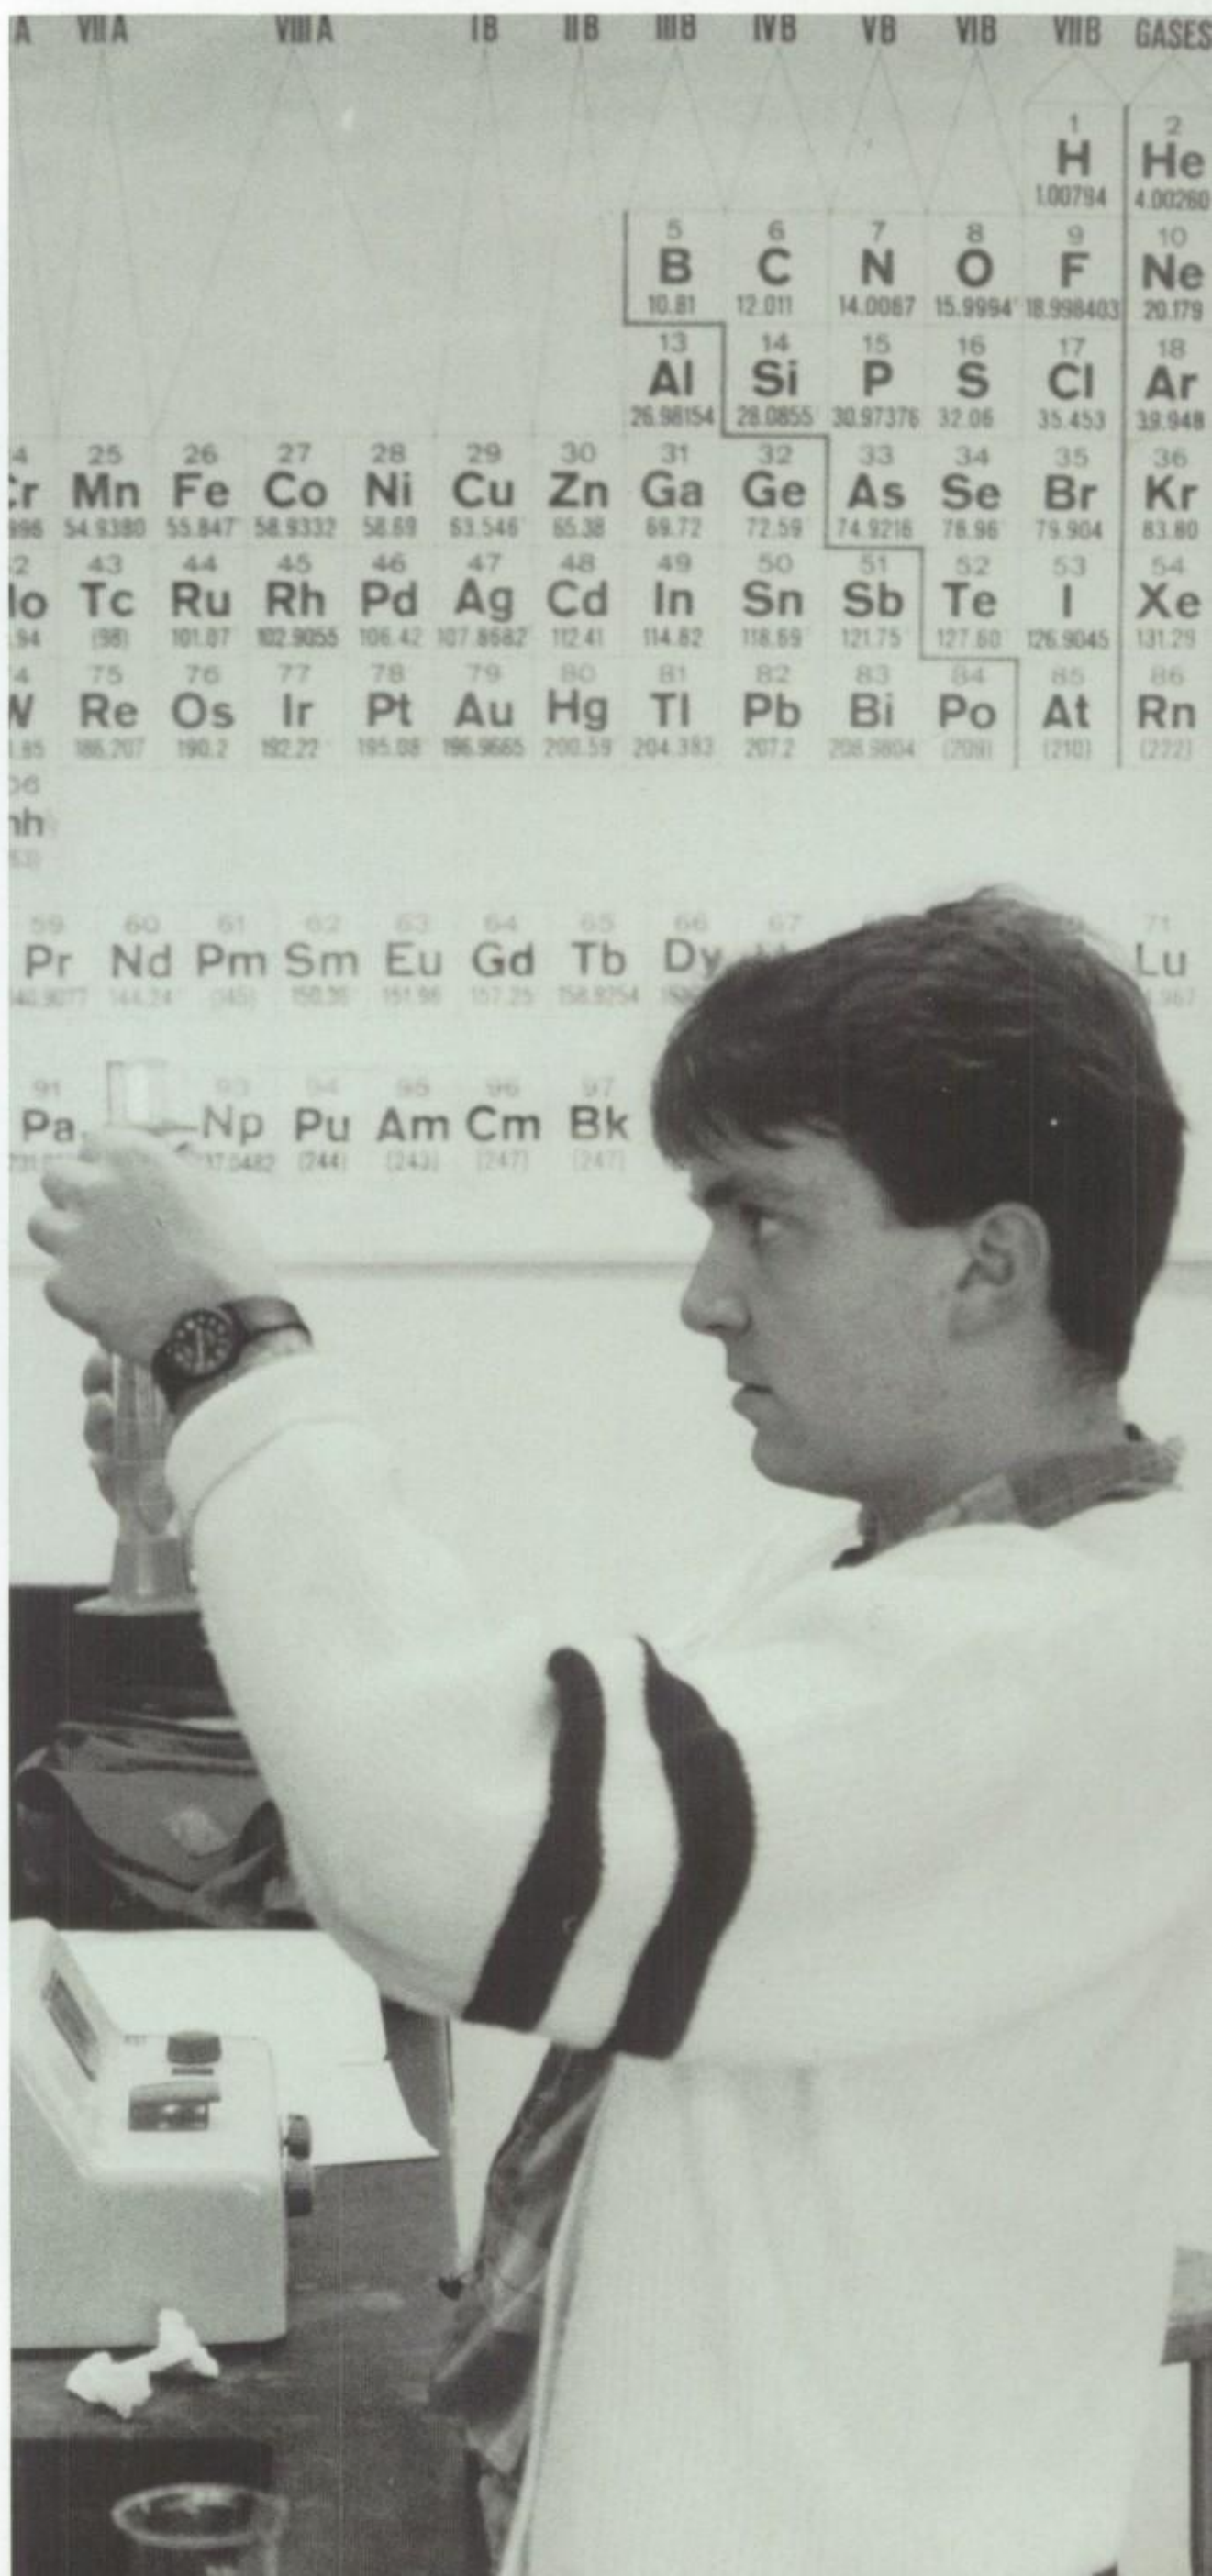

You probably noticed that there were a lot of inservice days this year, along with a lot of days when some teachers had substitutes. What happened on those days?

Several days were devoted to the Western Association of Schools and Colleges accreditation. The school was required to obtain this accreditation in order to continue receiving funds from the State of California. All staff members were required to complete a self-study. In addition, academic departments, student paths, integrated skills, student services, special needs, the library, and extra-curricular programs were investigated.

Several days were also devoted to classes on alcohol and substance abuse, disaster preparedness, and discipline. In addition many teachers participated in a program called clinical teaching. This allowed teachers to observe other teachers and learn what teaching methods worked best for their students.

Mr. Rudolph has obviously done a very good job of keeping Tristin Green entertained with his multitude of stories in A.P. U.S. History.

John Whitney and David Wong place their unknown into a special vial to be used for later testing.

This year advanced placement classes continued to increase both their enrollment and success. The main purpose of an A.P. class was to prepare students for the A.P. exam, which is given in early May, and allowed a student to get college credit for a class taken in high school. This often allowed a person to graduate up to a year earlier and cut down on the high costs of a college education. However, these tests were highly competitive, and most colleges

San Jose State and West Valley College to use the more advanced equipment found in a college lab.

A.P. biology was another science class offered for credit. The class, taught by Mr. Harvey, was very structured and organized. Each week students heard lectures and a presentation by a student who had researched a specific topic, then they took a test and wrote an essay. During the first semester, they concentrated on finishing the college textbook and required a score of at least three and sometimes four out of five possible points to receive credit. Luckily, due to the enthusiasm of the teachers most students did not have a problem.

The newest addition to the collection of A.P.'s was chemistry. The class entailed doing many labs which Mrs. Wendell spent the summer preparing at San Jose State. Also the class took several trips to places like then second semester devoted most of their time to lab work.

Other A.P. classes included calculus, U.S. History, and English. All of these followed the same format as a typical college course and were very difficult.

America: the melting pot of the World

Theodore Roosevelt knew that the melting pot would make the American culture unique, but he probably didn't realize how much the cultures of other nations would influence our own traditions. Vandalism

On the night of December 1, 1985, between $25,000 and $50,000 worth of damage was inflicted on the music wing. Vice-principal Al Simon reported that the band room had been broken into by two former students and one current student, who set two practice rooms on fire. Although the fire was extinguished before it could spread, there was a lot of smoke damage to the whole wing and several other items were burned including a drum set, a "ghetto blaster", some sheet music, choir robes, and a piano.

Generally, detective Ken Berry, of the Los Gatos Police Department, thought that there was not a lot of vandalism in Los Gatos. "This type of thing doesn't happen very often," he stated after the incident.

The charred remains of a piano show only a small part of the damage that was done to the music wing.

In ceramics students were first taught about clay types, the process of firing the clay, different types of glazes, and various methods of wheel-working and hand building, as well as how to use the numerous tools involved. Then they were given a chance to get their fingernails dirty. By the end of the year students got to try a new type of work known as pit firing.

In art, students learned about various types of artwork, such as charcoal drawing, watercolor, oil painting, and composition drawing. They also learned a lot about colors and how to combine them to express feelings, emotions, and ideas. Some of the students entered their various projects in exhibits like the Montalvo were also other differences that were stressed, like the amount of drugs people use here, which were almost non-existent in European schools, and the attitude of the people seemed to be much more open and friendly. Many were shocked by kids yelling down the halls to each other, and thought the rallies were really strange. Most of the students said that their schools didn't even have cheerleaders. Generally they all enjoyed their stay here.

Across The Oceans The Difference Stand Out

"Everyone has the same ideals about education," said Wolfgang Greiner, "but the way we approach it is unique."

The way schools were run in other countries was very different. In most places the education was dictated in that there was a nationally set syllabus which teachers had to follow. The classes which kids had to take was also set. Most schools required between ten and fifteen subjects each term. Thus, they would have a different schedule each day.

There were also three levels of high school. Students took an exam at the end of elementary school to determine which high school they would go to.

"School is stressed a lot more in America," commented Wolfgang Kuchler, "but the schools are so different, you can't compare them."

Wolfgang Greiner's school in Munich, Germany, Wilhelm-Hausenstein-Gymnasium, is typical of European schools.

Student Government Speaks Out

The members of the student government always played an important part of a student's life, for it was through them that we had say on what went on around us. In addition, each class was responsible for certain activities that were assigned to them by the student body officers. The senior class organized the senior ball and Toys for Tots. The junior class held the junior-senior prom and the canned food drive. The sophomore class organized the Christmas float, Thursday Night Live, and the Last Chance Dance. The freshman class held the Easter Bunny sales. The student body officers were responsible for organizing the Kick-Off Dance and the running of the student government meetings at which they discussed various items that were placed on the day's agenda. Without these officers, our various special activities would not have been possible.

As I look back on the year, I remember your spirit and involvement in the school. I both thank and admire you for your support and dedication throughout the year. I also remember our accomplishments along the way.

From our Northern California Champion Cross-Country team to our football team's participation in the CCS play-offs, this year was full of success. We showed the community our ability to help others with the Blood Drive, Food Bank, Toys for Tots, and the Ethiopian Relief Fund. The outstanding school spirit has been a strong factor in making this year one of the best Los Gatos High School has ever had.

High school is a very special time in our lives. I hope that your years here were enjoyable and rewarding, and that when you leave Los Gatos, you will have a lot of fond memories of this school.

To the entire student body, especially the class of 1986, I thank you for your support and wish you the best of luck, always.

C.S.F.

C.S.F. Helps Others

The California Scholarship Federation's main focus was to earn money for scholarships. This was an honor society, so it was difficult to become a member. Upon application, acceptance was based on grade point. Each student was required to maintain at least a 3.5 grade point average for each semester.

In order to earn the money they needed, C.S.F. set up a tutoring table. Any student who needed academic help could drop in. Members also held car washes and bake sales.

Speech & Debate Speaks Out

Most of the members agreed that speech and debate was straining and tiring and involved a lot of work and pressure, but the tournaments were fun and worth the dedication. Most of the tournaments were all day events, lasting from early morning to late evening. One of the club's main goals was to beat Bellarmine in debate. Speech and debate made dough Christmas tree ornaments to earn money to send their strongest debate team Renee Osterdock and Lainie Chroust to Redlands University for a tournament.

There were several kinds of speech and debate competitions, including programmed reading, original prose poetry, dramatic interpretation, and humorous interpretation. Some of the strongest and most active two-man teams were Karin Berk and Stacy Hawes for debate and Matt Abrahams and Dan Dermer for public speaking. Lisa Vasconcollos and Joanne Lin were also a strong team.

N.F.L. Competes

The National Forensic League was the honor society for speech and debate. It was an out of class activity for students in 11S and 12S. Their point system and extra credit for these classes depended on how often and how well they spoke in front of the judges at speech tournaments. In order to become a member, one must have accumulated a certain number of points in speech and debate.

Key Club Contributes to Community

The Key Club enjoyed a large increase in membership this year. According to their advisor, Dan Hood, the increase and success of the membership was due to the great leadership of their president Michelle Madsen. Sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, the Key Club aimed to give voluntary aid to the community. The dedicated members served hot meals twice a week to senior citizens at the Live Oak Nutrition Center. They also helped the elderly at the Cambrian Center put up their Christmas decorations. In addition, members helped to fingerprint children with the Vanished Children's Alliance.

New Club Takes Stand

Students and Teachers Against Nuclear Destruction, otherwise known as S.T.A.N.D., was a fairly new club to the school. It began around the spring of last year and began its first full year of activities this year. Its main purpose was to educate its members about the dangers of the nuclear arms race and to find ways of combatting it. The club showed informative films and took part in an international petition drive for the Delhi Declaration, which was a document written by the presidents of Argentina, Mexico, and the United Republic of Tanzania, and the prime ministers of India, Sweden, and Greece. It encouraged people to think about eliminating the nuclear arms race before it eliminated us.

Computer Club Communicates

The Computer Club enjoyed a new activity this year. They explored the idea of networking with other computer clubs in the Santa Clara Valley through their computers. With the right equipment, they could communicate with other clubs by typing and receiving conversation on their computer screens. With this handy way of communication, they could also easily trade programs. In addition to their new activity, the computer club also tried a new way of fund raising with a game day, during which students could come and play games on computers if they paid a small price. They also made plans to visit local electronic firms to see how computers were fabricated.

Gamers Guild

Gamers Get Change of Title

The Gamer's Guild had a change of name. This change came about because the former name, War-Games Club, sounded violent and war-like. Other than the change in its name, the club was basically the same, and conducted its regular activities of war- and role-playing games. For fund raising purposes and to gain more members, the club held a convention in November. The money raised from this convention was used to buy new games to add to the club's collection.

Art Draws Attention

The art club's main purpose was to create the programs and poster we saw around campus for activities. They designed the tee-shirts for concerts, sports, and clubs. They made windchimes as Christmas presents for the senior citizens at the rest homes in Los Gatos.

They planned an overnight field trip to Monterey and Santa Cruz to see the art museums. The profit from selling the shirts funded the trip.

Chess Club Plays On

The chess club tried to raise money to hold tournaments with the other champions from schools in this area. Their goals were to challenge champions from European countries and other foreign nations. The money also went for buying clocks, which were essential for the serious chess games.

Mr. Crawford, the club's adviser, felt the club was one of the best in the school's history. "They are very high spirited and violent," said Mr. Crawford. During the weekly meetings they discussed new and different maneuvers and then tried their strategies against each other.

Commissioners Take Care of It All

The Student Body Commissioners were a branch of the student council. The student body president decided what committees would be needed then the Student Council selected the commissioners. Commissioners were responsible for new students, spirit rallies, finances, publicity, sound and lights, and entertainment. The entertainment commissioners were in charge of organizing bands for the Christmas, Spring, and Kickoff dances. New students were made to feel welcome when that committee came to their rescue for introducing them to new friends, clubs, and classes. Spirit commissioners planned the rallies and were in charge of the pep club. The publicity committee helped bring positive recognition to activities while the sound and light commissioners were responsible for all the audio and lights for every dance.

Girls League Organizes Activities

The girls league sponsored candy cane sales for Christmas, carnation sales for Valentine's Day, and sold chocolate bunnies for Easter in order to raise money for scholarships. They were responsible for the theme of the Coronation Ball which was "I Left My Heart in San Francisco." They also dreamed up themes for the Sadie's and the Senior Ball. They collected ideas to decorate the gym and made posters to publicize the dances.

Jazz Purr is the Cat's Meow

The jazz choir performed songs from the early 1930's and '40's by Jean Perling and other artists. In April they traveled on tour in Los Angeles for competition with other choir groups from California. Their Christmas concerts at Villa Felice restaurant, the Los Gatos Lodge, and at the high school were well-produced and well-rehearsed. Uniforms were made for each of the choir members and the boys' tuxedo were brought with the money they raised from calender sales.

Concert Choir Sings the Blues

Concert choir attracted the enthusiastic students who wanted to learn to read music and have fun with singing. The concert choir sang some songs from gospel backgrounds, like "Shut the Door."

They performed five Christmas concerts at the Los Gatos Lodge and the school. They raised money by selling calenders to take their bus trip to Los Angeles for their choir tour.

Stop and Hear the Sound of Music

The concert band, under the instruction of Paul Bostwick, rehearsed as a class every day during fourth period. During the period the students diligently practiced such pieces as "Golliwogg's Cake Walk," "Hungarian Dance No. 6," "Black Horse Troop," and "Bach Celebration" in preparation for their various performances. Some of the band's performances included a joint concert with the San Jose Symphonic Band, an art fair in Saratoga, a festival in Livermore, and, of course, the band summed up the year by playing their usual performance at the graduation ceremony.

Orchestra Receives Encore

After a few years of having a before-school orchestra or no orchestra at all, aggravated students circulated a petition to have the class put back into the regular school curriculum. The decision was welcomed with enthusiasm as orchestra was once again offered as a class during seventh period. The students, under the instruction of Mr. Lindsay during the first semester and Mrs. Barraclough during the second, rehearsed mostly classical pieces as "Beethoven's First Symphony" and "Madam Butterfly." They performed at various concerts and festivals, including the Christmas concert, which was held jointly with the Saratoga High School orchestra.

Basketball Band Brings On Spirit

The basketball band, known in the past as the pep band, was led by Kelly Sprowl and advised by Judy Bingman. The band was quite successful as the members did their usual great job of spreading enthusiasm and spirit at both girls and boys basketball games, where they played such energetic pieces as "Ghostbusters," "Maniac," "She Bop," and "Louis, Louis." New selections from Hal Leonard Super Hits for Marching Band were also added to the program. In addition, members performed at local schools to interest future Los Gatos High students in the band program. The band was also available to be hired for special events such as the Los Gatos-Saratoga Great Race.

Pep Club Roots For No. 1

The pep club was responsible for much of the spirit shown at the sporting events. Aside from forming their special rooting section at the football and basketball games, the members, consisting mostly of cheerleaders and prospective cheerleaders, met two times a week to plan rallies and make posters and fliers to advertise upcoming games and events. The members also sold concessions at the football games.

Marching Band

Students Band Together for Success

The Wildcat marching band was the most successful that it had been in approximately 15 years. For the first time, the band placed first in the Saratoga parade and took sweepstakes at the W.V.A.L. Band Jamboree (league championships). Furthermore, they placed in all of their field show competitions. Many people felt that the band's success was due to Frank Wyant, a San Jose State University percussion major. Wyant wrote and taught the band's field show and also managed the percussion section. But, a large part of the success was also due to the members' great dedication and spirit. They were seen practicing every day for a week before school started from eight in the morning until five in the evening. In addition to these tedious practices, they practiced on various evenings after school started. Happily, the work paid off as the band members had a trip to perform in Canada or Disneyland planned for the spring.

Auxiliary Units Color the Field

The color guard underwent many beneficial changes this year. All the squad had new, flashier uniforms that they designed themselves. It was the final break from the traditional black jumpers worn in previous years. Another change was that freshmen were accepted on the squads for the first time. Subsequently, the drill team had three freshmen members, and the tall flags had one member. Drill and tall flags also tried their hand at special effects, using orange streamers and umbrellas at certain points in the show to enhance the band's grand performance.

The squads worked diligently throughout the summer with regular practices almost every day of the week. The tall flags also had Tom Salciccia, a former Los Gatos High School drum major, who helped them improve their technique. All the practices definitely paid off as the squads all did fairly well at the competitions, and the drill team brought back their very first spirit stick, which is an award to the most spirited team, and the small flags brought back a superior trophy from their camps at U.C. Santa Cruz during the summer.

Spirit Squad

Spirit Squad Cheers On

The spirit squad added much excitement and enthusiasm to all of our football and basketball games. In addition to the large part they played at these games, they also projected their spirit with performances at the Kick-Off Dance and the Last Chance Dance. The girls spread much happiness as they performed for the residents of convalescent hospital and the patients of the San Jose Children's Hospital during the holidays. The spirit squad also helped out their advisor Roni Lombardi in the career center; however, they never failed to perform their job of igniting spirit within our school.

French Club Entertains

The French club had their annual bake sale to raise money for scholarships for seniors. The money they raised also went toward the relief fund for the volcanic eruption in Columbia. French 4 and French 5 students were eligible to attend a cultural workshop in San Francisco. There, they were only allowed to speak in French.

Jayne Franks, club secretary, organized a ski trip in January which was funded by the club treasury. They also had crepe parties at the club members' houses after school and rented French movies.

German Club Helps Out

Although the German club was small, the members were very enthusiastic. They had Gummi Bear sale to raise money to construct gingerbread houses at their Christmas party. In addition, they organized a ski trip for all members who participated in their bake sale.

They also showed German movies, but had a difficult time finding ones that had not been dubbed with English sub-titles. The club also helped raise money for disaster relief for the Mexico City earthquake and volcanic eruption in Columbia.

Spanish Club Supports Needy

The Spanish club supported a boy in Mexico. Each month they sent him all the money they earned from various fund raising activities. For their Christmas party, the members made Mexican dishes and carried on cultural traditions by singing songs in Spanish and breaking a pinata. During the weekly meetings, they studied culture and traditions, such food, clothing, the school system, and beliefs.

Latin Club Aids Disaster Victims

As a result of a pizza party designed to encourage interest in the Latin club, the membership rose to a high of forty people. As the school year progressed, the members enjoyed various activities such as pizza parties, scavenger hunts, and movies. They also experienced the satisfaction of giving as they helped collect donations for the victims of the Columbia volcano and the Mexican earthquake disasters. The members also raised funds for a ski trip in January by holding car washes and cookie sales.

In Los Gatos There's More to Italy Than Di Puccio's

In November the Italian club had the opportunity to go to San Mateo to hear recording artists from Italy perform. This activity as well as others were possible because of the various fund raisers the club held by selling Toblerone chocolate and baked goods and by holding Italian dinners. The members also planned on buying club sweatshirts or T-shirts with the money earned.

Salad Club Mixes Cultures

The International Salad Club was once called the International Club, but three years ago, a foreign exchange student from Germany suggested to change the name to International Salad Club in order to add a little spice to the name. That name was chosen because a salad was a mixture of different kinds of vegetables, which symbolized the club's philosophy, a mixture of people from different cultures sharing their experiences to form a club of unified, equal friends.

The Salad Club was formed to provide the exchange students with a place to go. The American students in the club helped the exchange students to adjust to the new environment and also learned about other cultures themselves. Luncheons and parties were held to help the members get acquainted, and soon they all became good friends despite the language barrier. The members also had a chance to meet other exchange students from all over the valley through a luncheon, the United Nations Day, and through an international talk-in in March where they talked to American students as well as each other about life in their countries. The members also spoke to many other organizations, such as the Tuesday Club, a club for retired ladies.

El Gato Makes Headlines

The El Gato was our student newspaper. It was written by students in Journalism II and advised by Mrs. Wickett. At the beginning of the year, students who were interested in being editors went to workshops every day after school. From these, Mrs. Wickett selected the co-editors of each section. The sections were news, features, and sports. Editors were responsible for assigning story topics to the writers.

After each issue was published staff members went through an extensive self-evaluation and reviewed grades for their articles.

Parlez-vous Francais?

The Francophile was a newspaper that was written in French by the French students. The students wrote articles and stories for the French teachers and they submitted them to the editors, Nicole Nicoladis and Alyson McCleve. They published the paper about once every quarter, with Christmas and Spring holiday editions.

Most of the articles were students' compositions about the attitudes of people in France during the time period being studied. Other articles were about French literature.

Wildcat Looks Again!

The Wildcat's theme was "Look aGain." The theme's purpose was to encourage people to take a closer look at life at Los Gatos High.

Most people never realized how much time effort was put into the yearbook. Staff members often stayed after school sometimes into the night to meet their deadlines. Each student was responsible for a particular section of the book. This meant that he or she had to design the layout, be sure all photos were taken, choose photos to be used, interview people, and write and type copy. Students learned responsibility by meeting deadlines. They also learned to work together to accomplish common goals. They were rewarded by seeing their efforts published, an honor few people ever achieve.

Student Life

Students Make School Come Alive

Nearly everyone had said they hate school at one time or another, and more often than once. There was always too much homework or we started out with the teacher who thought three chapters of text and nine dittos would be a good way to welcome us back to school. Those of us who enjoyed sleeping an extra hour had to fight our way through the parking lot for a space. Somehow we made it through the first three or four classes without starving to death and went to brave the front lawn food fights and seagulls or the derby which took place in the parking lot.

Even though the frustrating times were nearly enough to make us want to turn around and go home, the good almost always outweighed the bad. School was fun! We laughed through the long, hard days with old friends. We met new people too, and some of our most valuable friends were our teachers. Besides our friends, there were other special joys of going to school. There was the relief of finishing the last term paper or final, which somehow made all the hard work seem well worth the time. Dances, variety shows, and plays gave everyone some time to take a break from homework and classes and enjoy some newfound talent.

Of course the good times were what made our high school lives the most interesting; however, good or bad, we couldn't help but smile when it was all over.

Fire Rages

It started as a brush fire near Lexington Reservoir on Sunday afternoon, July 7, 1985. One week and $3 million dollars later, the Lexington fire had severely taxed the resources and cooperation of 1,800 firefighters, 235 engines, 36 bulldozers, a dozen helicopters, and 4 tanker planes. Many mountain homes were reduced to ashes, and 4,500 people forced to evacuate. Junior Robin Foster, said that leaving her house was scary because she didn't know if she would come back to a house of ashes. Junior Elisa Walker said, "When my family was forced to evacuate, all that I could think of was losing the house that I have spent my entire life in." The story was made more personal by the fact that the home of Mrs. Hughes, vice principal, was threatened. While on vacation, the Hugheses had no idea their house was in danger. Mr. Simonson, principal, concerned about the Hughes' home, showed up just in time to help fight a fire on their property. His successful efforts saved their home from certain destruction. Two other neighbors benefitted from his help as he also fought to save their property.

The fire swept quickly into Chemeketa Park, Aldercroft Heights, and aimed itself menacingly at the residential area of Loma Prieta and Wrights Station Road. Called the worst fire in 100 years, it was reminiscent of the Mt. Umunhum fire of July 18, 1961 in which 9,000 acres were destroyed in the same area, an ironic anniversary.

Another unfortunate victim was Mrs. Lombardi, the spirit squad adviser, who had approximately thirteen minutes to evacuate and wasn't allowed back in. The next day her house was destroyed. As stated by Mrs. Lombardi, "I wish that the firefighters organized the evacuation more carefully so that less homes and property were destroyed." Out of 43 homes only four families planned to rebuild what they lost.

Vasona Park became the firefighters' command post. Firefighters from neighboring towns, counties, and states united and worked around the clock to bring this multi-headed monster under control. Fortunately, none of these people were seriously hurt. Homeowners were grateful, and signs appeared everywhere thanking those heroic defenders.

Kick Off the New Year Right!

The first social event of the new school year was the always popular and well attended Kick-Off Dance. This year's dance was held only two days after school started, on Friday, September 6, in the large gym.

The band for the evening was Trak, a well known and popular Bay Area group. They played many favorites, both old and new, by groups like the Cars, Wham, and Bruce Springsteen.

The highlight of the night was the demonstration by the various spirit squad teams. The small flag girls did a lively routine to "Old Time Rock and Roll," and the varsity cheerleaders chose to do an energetic dance routine instead of leading the crowd in a cheer. All of the teams performed with skill and precision, which showed how hard they had been working over the summer. The students responded with enthusiastic applause and screams.

The dance was held on a cool fall evening, so some students were dressed in wintery sweaters. However, the majority wore casual summery clothes like shorts and tank tops.

There was a lot of socializing, and dancing done by both couples and groups of friends together.

After a summer vacation filled with fun, work, and just plain relaxing, students showed that they were ready to resume their busy social lives, an important part of every school year. The Kick-Off Dance was the perfect place to renew old friendships, meet new friends, and start the year off right.

We're Out For Blood

It was Thursday, October 31, and once again room 91 was filled with the warm feeling of caring and sharing. It was the day of the blood drive, which the Key Club sponsored for the Red Cross.

People gave blood for many reasons. A few did it just to get out of class, but most did it because it made them feel good that they could help save someone's life. When senior Kevin Jakey was asked why he wanted to give blood he said, "To return a favor. Once someone saved my life so I figured it was my turn to save someone else."

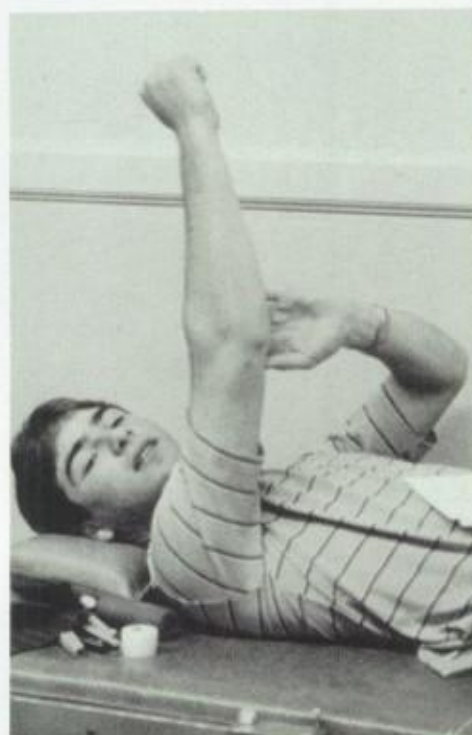

Members of the Key club started preparations for the drive several weeks before the actual day. They posted signs in the halls advertising the event. They also signed up 100 students to donate blood. More students would have signed up, however, in order to donate, a person had to be at least 17 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds.

Before a student could save a life, he had to go through some routine checks. Nurses were set up at different stations to question and give medical tests to each person who expected to donate blood. Forms had to be filled out and because of the recent worries over A.I.D.S., some very personal and embarrassing questions had to be asked. Tests were taken to check blood type, blood pressure, and iron level. If everything checked out, the student had to wait his or her turn for an empty table. For many, waiting was the worst part of the ordeal. It made many of the donors nervous. "If it doesn't hurt when they stab me, I'll be okay," commented senior Michele Craig.

Finally, they stretched out on the tables for the procedure, which took about 10 to 15 minutes. Nearly a pint of blood later, the weakened donor was led to the canteen where he sat for 15 minutes to make sure he was going to be okay. While the donors waited, members of the Key Club served them cookies and punch to help them get some of their energy back.

By the end of the day, 97 students and teachers had given the gift of life and 81 pints of blood were collected.

Spirit Shakes L.G.

Everybody showed their school spirit during spirit week. The students participated by wearing the designated clothing ideas for the week. The week started out with everyone being comfortable wearing their sweats. The next day, everyone began to prepare for Halloween a day early by dressing up like nerds. Finally Halloween arrived and the costumes ranged from a Clark Kent/Superman to a male cheerleader. The students and faculty showed that everybody still like to dress up. On Friday the students were true to their school, wearing the school colors, black and orange.

During this week we gave the football team our total support. The cheerleaders danced their way through the lunch time rallies. Students were picked from each grade level to participate in the lunch hour games. The juniors and seniors battled it out in the tug of war game. Students and teachers raced around with eggs on their spoons. Creative students got prizes for their imaginative costumes. Spirit Week brought out the school spirit in everyone!

"Unsports" Get Respect

When we thought of sports, the usual thing sprang to mind — football, basketball, baseball, soccer, field hockey. But many people were involved in other un-official sporting activities, the "unsports", such as skateboarding, surfing, juggling, trick-cycling, and playing with a Hacky Sack.

Skateboarding, one of the most popular pastimes, was strictly an off-campus activity since it was banned on campus for safety reasons.

Surfing was a year-round sport; many students could be found catching waves off Capitola. In respect to the controversy over off-shore oil drilling off the California coast, a banner was spotted in the quad which read, "Surf the coast, don't drill it!"

Juggling proved a fun way to gain fame and popularity. Jugglers were spotted practicing their timing and wowing the crowds in the quad and at Thursday Night Live.

Bicycles not only provided transportation to school, but could also be used for performing tricks, like popping wheelies and doing spin-outs.

Hacky Sack was the fastest growing footsport in America. The game was played by keeping a small leather bag in the air without using your hands. The front lawn at lunch was the place to showcase your talents, with four or five groups playing at once. Mr. Leal even joined in on occasion.

The "unsports" gave us an alternative way to keep in shape, develop skills, and have fun at the same time.

Shakespearean Couple Makes a Hit in "Romeo and Juliet"

Joe Pambianco as Romeo explains his situation with Rosaline to Benvolio.

"Romeo and Juliet," one of the most familiar and beloved of Shakespeare's tragedies, was presented on Friday and Saturday, November first and second, and Nov. eighth and ninth.

The talented cast was directed by Joseph Glasner, who has been an important part of school dramatic productions for over twenty years. The student director was Sasha Breitman, who has been in many school productions in the past.

Kristen Hopf as Juliet and Joe Pambianco as Romeo were very convincing as the famous star-crossed lovers. Other outstanding performances were given by Jon Williams as Mercutio and Allyson McCleve as the nurse.

The costumes departed from the usual costumes used in Shakespearean plays. Most of the girls wore costumes made to look like 16th century clothing, but the boys were dressed in rehearsal — type clothes such as sweatshirts and pants.

The cast put in an average of three hours of practice a day, as did the crew, which consisted of Dave Brewer, Gwen Burrows, Steve Gaylord, Becca Kruppenbacher, and Glenn Storm.

There was one very versatile set throughout the entire production. It was modified and/or changed between scenes by moving in or taking out furniture or stairs. The costumes were done by Alberta Boyer, who dedicated a lot of her time and energy to the play.

Over all, "Romeo and Juliet" was an outstanding production. The exhausting practices really paid off for the actors when they heard the thunderous applause.

A Night to Remember

"Leave Your Heart in San Francisco" was the theme of the Coronation Ball, held from eight to eleven on November 15, 1985, in the large gym. After having dinner in fancy restaurants such as Villa Felice, Sebastian's, and Shadowbrook, hundreds of couples arrived at the dance, many in limousines, all dressed in beautiful formal wear. One could feel the excitement in the air as the gym filled.

The gym was decorated with pictures of street signs, cable cars, and buildings made to resemble those in San Francisco. There was also a large mirror ball hanging from the ceiling, which lent an air of romance during slow dances.

The band for the evening was Anthem. As energetic and excited as the students, they played a wide variety of favorites, managing to please just about everyone. "I thought they were very good," commented junior Tom Jones. "They really played what we all wanted to hear. My only complaint is that they didn't play enough slow songs."

Tension built up as students excitedly awaited the crowning of the royalty. The nominees for Senior King were Jeff Borgese, Dan Hastings, and Matt Heller. The nominees for queen were Aimee McNeilly, Shannon Mister, and Amy Paul. Junior prince nominees included Marc Bresniker, John Morris, and Eric Pfeiffer. Kristen Nedom, Anne Pulley, and Stacey White were the candidates for junior princess. The sophomore class nominated Bill Latimer, Kale Wedemeyer, and Phil Yannoni for prince, with Allyson Cowan, Tina Guenther, and Courtney Heller for princess. The freshman class nominees for prince were Jason Drotar, Matt Lemiere, and Mike Powell. Nominees for princess were Jill Halverson, Ashley Harwin, and Andrea Meinhardt. The winners of the Coronation royalty were King Dan Hastings and Queen Aimee McNeilly, Junior Prince John Morris and Princess Stacey White, Sophomore Prince Phil Yannoni and Princess Courtney Heller, and Freshman Prince Matt Lemiere and Princess Ashley Harwin. The crowning of the royalty was followed by a slow dance dedicated to all the royalty and their escorts.

All in all, the Coronation Ball was a success. Senior Amber Ikola said, "Aside from the fact that the cuff on my date's pants ripped and my dress was slipping off, we both had a wonderful time!"

The crowd goes wild to the energetic beat of Anthem.

"Mrs. Hansen, can I go to the bathroom?" A classic line for the anxious lunchbound student. Fifteen minutes before the bell rang, students suspiciously had to go to the bathroom or in more accurate terms, leave for places such as the parking lot or the restaurant across the street. The lunch rush started minutes before the bell rang. The parking lot began to stir as students raced towards McDonalds.

At the same time, the bell shattered the silence of the halls. Masses crammed their way through the cafeteria doors and swarms of hungry students poured onto the front lawn to meet their friends. The neighboring restaurants and stores were also jammed full of noisy students. One threat held above the students' heads was that the campus must be clean after the lunch hour, or there was a short lunch the next day.

Accessories were in! From watches to brooches our student body had one of the most colorful arrays of fashionable accessories ever. The newest trend in accessories was the Swatch, a line of watches with colorfully decorated faces. Many students owned more than one, with a different color and style for almost every outfit. Brooches were another accessory used for accent on collars, hats, and scarves.

For pants, stirrup tights in wild floral or plaid patterns were in with both guys and girls. Other favorites included the always popular Levi's 501's and baggy pants rolled up to the ankle.

Though the preppy look was still seen on campus, many students asserted their individuality by wearing clothes that suited their own taste.

Students Spread Christmas Cheer

During the Christmas season our school sponsored many activities. Starting at the beginning of December, students brought in canned food for the needy people of the Santa Clara Valley. Classes tried to win first prize by bringing in the most canned foods.

The girls league sold candy canes for 25¢ each for people to send to their friends. Canes were delivered in homeroom on the last day of school before Christmas vacation.

The choir got the school into the spirit, with concerts presented during periods 3 and 4. The choir was dressed in taffeta dresses and tuxedos for the occasion.

Many people turned out to decorate Los Gatos High's float. Their hard work was rewarded with donuts and hot chocolate as they stuffed napkins into Frosty the Snowman.

The annual Christmas Parade down No. Santa Cruz Avenue brought out the sunshine. In the morning it was sprinkling, but as the parade progressed the sun came out. Our band marched proudly down the street, and the crowd roared as our float came into view.

The students generously gave canned foods to those in need.

Jingle Bells Rock

When students arrived for the Christmas Dance on Friday, December 20, they found the large gym decorated in the Christmas spirit with a huge Christmas tree surrounded by presents. Dancers who brought in gifts for needy children received a discount on admission.

Seasonal attire was the thing to wear. Many wore red and green outfits, Santa Claus hats, or sweatshirts which proclaimed "Merry Christmas" or "Jingle Bells."

Santa Claus was on hand too to pass out Christmas goodies while students rocked to the sound of Modern Art. Some revelers squirmed around on the floor doing their interpretation of "The Worm", while others wound around the room doing "the Centipede."

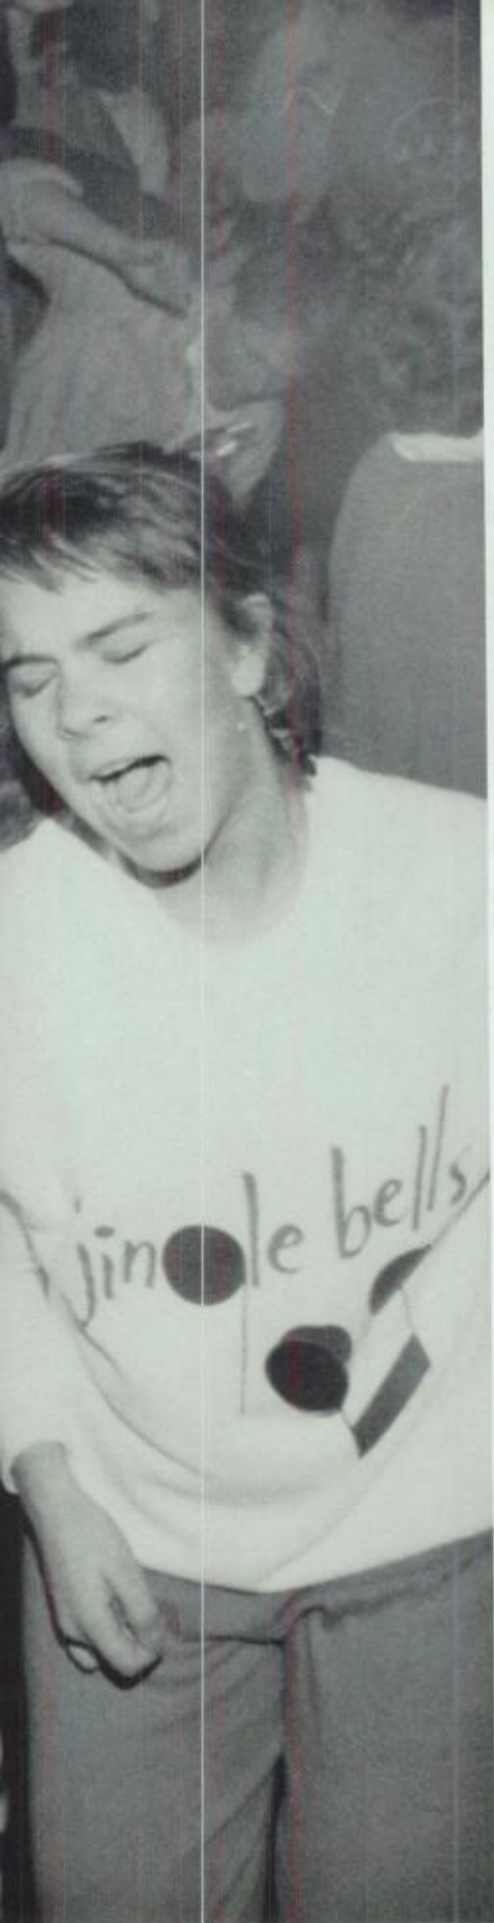

The Christmas Dance kicked off the two week winter break and helped get everyone into the spirit of the season.

Christmas cheer fills the air as the crowd grows wild.

Let's Go Cruising!

An Austin-Healey Sprite adds a British touch of class to a Santa Cruz Mountain backdrop.

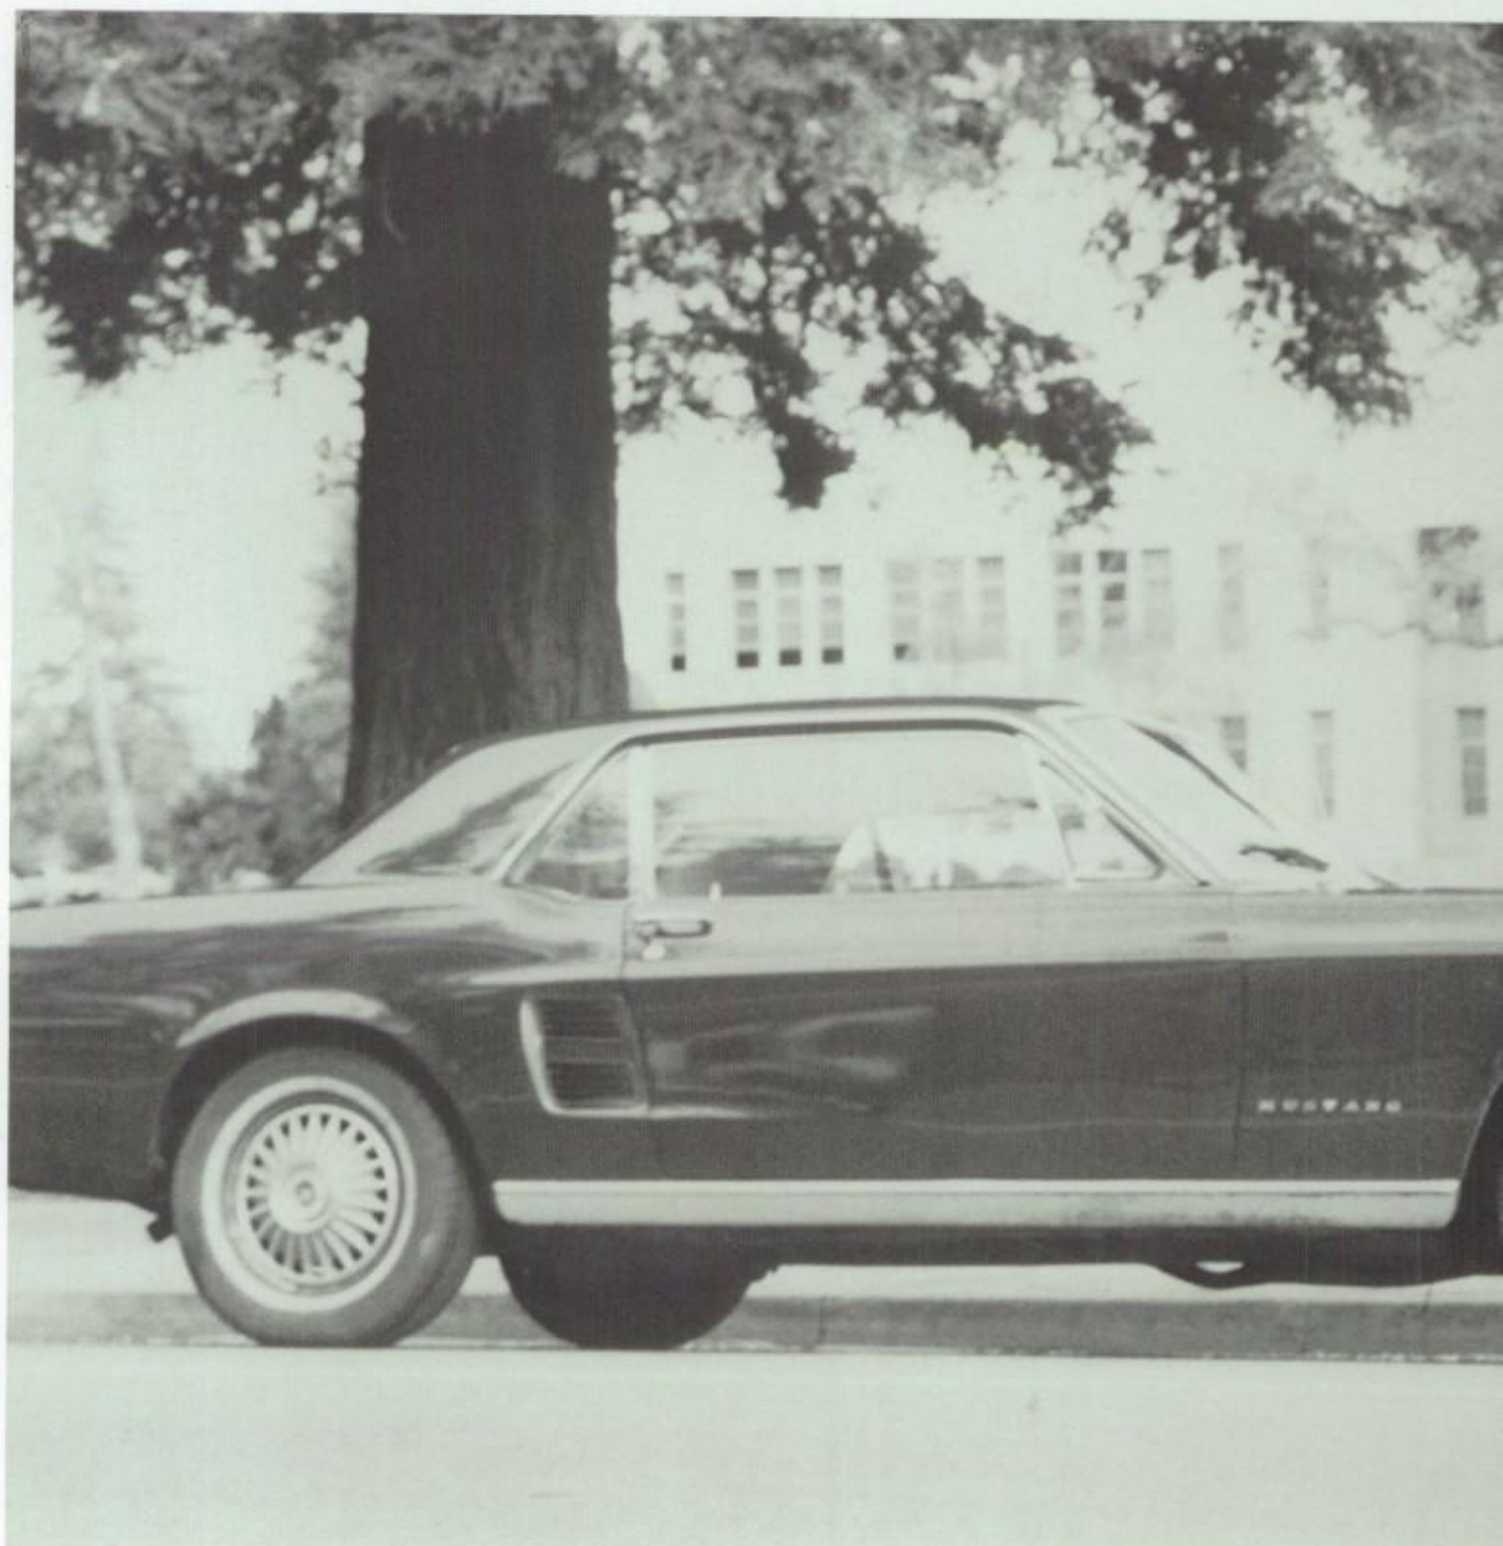

Automobiles provided more than just transportation for students. They were representative of an individual's personality; they were comrades; they were means of entertainment, and most importantly, they were students' keys to freedom.

The racey type drove sports cars; the conservative type drove economy cars; the groupies drove vans, and everyone in between drove Volkswagons. Students advertised their likes and dislikes in the form of bumper stickers and personalized license plates. When all your friends were not around, or life seemed miserable, your car would always be there to keep you company, and it would never talk behind your back! Cars were a ticket to the beach, concerts, movies and many other social events. They were access to lots of fun times.

With all of their advantages, cars also created a problem. This problem existed for many years, but this year it seemed worse than ever. It was parking and congestion.

Every day after 8:00 a.m. a race began to find and take the few remaining parking spots. Over the summer a former dirt parking area was paved to add more space. Unfortunately, that wasn't enough. Students resorted to parking along surrounding streets, including those with two-hour zones. Between classes students had to run out to their cars parked along East Main and Church Streets to repark them.

Getting parked, however, was only the beginning of the problem. Traffic was chaotic as students made a dash to get out of the parking lots during lunch and after school. The daily surges of hectic congestion were virtually impossible to avoid. All the parking and traffic problems seemed bad enough to discourage students from driving to school, but no hardships were too much for devoted car owners who refused to use the age-old solution, feet!

An overabundance of cars causes constant congestion in the high school vicinity.

Wet weather makes parking problems even more unbearable.

It's Not Just A Regular Thursday Night

Thursday night January 16, came alive when students showcased their varied talents. The acts were introduced by the Masters of Ceremonies, Parker Karnan, Joe Pambianco, and Henry Smith. Besides song and dance there were comedy juggling acts and more.

Students auditioned for the show and were picked to fill the 15 spaces available for acts.

The show started off with the band Modern Memory singing "Alive and Kicking." Then Kim Nehr danced to the song "Boy in the Box," and Jon Williams sang a solo, "Somebody." The fourth act was a dance routine performed by Kay Henshall and K.C. More to "I'm Free." The group Team Larry performed their newly written song, "Joe Jammer." Neel Chatterjee and Company demonstrated how to be nerds in their comedy act. Michelle Phalan danced a solo to "Digital Display" in a glittering costume. Lars Nylander and the Psychiatric Disorder sang "What I like About You." Greg Heller wowed the audience by performing a comedy juggling act. The seven girls of Sassy Seven danced to "Party All the Time." Jon Williams, Eirik Solberg, Anne Burke, and Dan Dermer sang "Birdland." Liz Denevi and Robin Reynolds did a splendid dance to "Shock." Greg Nagler and Dave Wu sang and played their guitars to "Take a Walk on the Wild Side." Anne Burke and Wally Purcell sang "They Don't Know." The Art Department finished the evening with the stage full of art students dancing and singing to "Come on and Dance."

From scooping ice cream to selling shirts, the Los Gatos student body kept themselves busy with part-time jobs. By slaving endless hours, students earned money to pay for cars, dates, and clothes.

Restaurants and food shops were favorite places to work. Ice cream sales helped put money in the pockets of many students working at Baskin-Robbins and Swensen's. Others put in their time at Morrow's Nut House, Stuff

Pizza, The Chart House, or McDonalds. Some students helped the elderly at the Meadows, ran rides at Marriots Great America amusement park, or worked in clothing stores. Regardless of where you worked, wealth was not the only benefit. A job symbolized independence, growing up, and having a life of your own. Jobs also provided the chance to meet new people and improve your social life.

Rain, Rain, Go Away

Water was up to the car doors on Main Street. At Fisher Junior High's gymnasium, high winds ripped off the gutter and one fifth of the roof. Damage from the Lexington fires magnified the danger of mudslides. Power lines were knocked down by falling trees, leaving large areas without power for one or more days. All of these were results of the week-long February storm that swept over Los Gatos.

During the storm, trees were blown down across driveways, roads were washed out, parks with lakes were closed, and some houses floated down hillsides on a sea of mud. The Red Cross set up a temporary relief station in the school's small gym for those who chose to evacuate their mud-or flood-threatened homes.

The damage the storm did affected a lot of students and faculty. Some were even prevented from getting to school. Members of the crew team were prevented from practicing due to contamination of Lexington reservoir.

When the storm finally ended, and the clouds parted to reveal the unfamiliar blue sky, Los Gatos began the process of cleaning and repair. Mud was bulldozed off roads, fences were rebuilt, fallen trees were cut into firewood, and leaky roofs were repaired.

Roughing It For RUGBY!

What exactly was the Los Gatos Rugby Club? It was started last year by Mr. Haywood and Dan Smith, who coached the team. Though not considered an official school team, the popular club had a membership of more than forty-five students and was part of the Skyhawk Conference. Dan Hastings was the president, Steve Davies was the vice-president, and Andy Hirsh was the treasurer.

The positions on the rugby team had names that sound unfamiliar, such as hooker, props, second rows, flankers, number eight man, scrum-half, stand-off, inside and outside center, wings, and goal tender.

"Rugby is tough but not brutal," remarked Dan Hastings. "We battle each other for eighty minutes and then we have a good time." According to Dan, there was a lot of cameraderie in the rugby club. It wasn't just a team, but a group of friends, too.

"I think this year's team is wonderful," exclaimed Coach Dan Smith. "I expect the team to win the conference championship. I'm also sure they'll have a high ranking in Northern California, if not the state."

The ruggers beat many top teams, including Del Campo, which placed in the top five in the nation, and Bellarmine, which placed fourth in the state. They also won against Santa Clara University and Stanford.

For the future they hoped to travel and play in New Zealand or Canada.

Prom-Goers Dance Through Time

The Junior-Senior Prom was held on February 8, 1986, in the small gym. About 150 couples attended the dance.

The theme, "Back to the Future," was carried out through the decorations. You were transformed in time when you walked through the time machine located between the dance studio and the small gym. Upon entering the dance studio, you were taken back in time to the 1950's. The music and decorations of this nostalgic era were evident throughout the room. After walking into the small gym via the time machine, dancers were transformed from the 1950's to the future year of 2010.

The room was color-coordinated, with decorations in black and pink. A futuristic feeling was created by the presence of a working robot.

The dancers could be observed moving to the music played by the band, Radio Active, or taking a break by enjoying cake and punch at one of the many tables.

The guys dressed up in tuxedos or suits. The girls dazzled their dates with their strapless taffeta formal dresses.

The prom-goers had a good time during their visit "Back to the Future." Junior Susan Dahl commented, "The decorations were really neat, and I think everyone had an enjoyable evening."

Take A Vacation With SADIE!

On March seventh at eight p.m. in the large gym, students vacationed in many different exotic places. "Sadie Takes a Vacation" was the theme of the Sadie Hawkins Dance. Always one of the most popular and well-attended dances of the year, this Sadie was certainly no exception.

The entryway to the gym was decorated with travel posters of different vacation spots such as Hawaii, the Bahamas, and Europe, and a table was set up displaying travel brochures. Once inside the gym, one could see hand painted posters of vacation spots all over the walls. The lighting was different than in past dances, casting stars down onto the crowded dance floor. The traditional "wedding hut" was set up in one of the corners, and all evening there was a very long line of students waiting to get "married."

Music was supplied by the Billionaires, a rhythm-and-blues and 60's rock band. Although a lot of the songs they played were classics that were unfamiliar to the students, quite a few were very well liked. One of these was "Louie, Louie," The Billionaires played "Louie, Louie" toward the beginning of the dance, and the students went wild. By the end of the dance, the band had gotten so many requests for "Louie, Louie" that they played it a second time! Junior Aubrey Ward enjoyed the Billionaires, commenting, "They were rad. I liked their music a lot better than the Top 40 we usually hear at dances."

One of the most interesting things about the Sadie was seeing the many different places the students chose to "travel" to. The majority of students went Hawaiian, but some of the more imaginative students went to Mexico, Greece, Scotland, the jungle, the South Seas, and the North Pole. One couple, junior Joe Martin and freshman Melanie Sloan, vacationed in Texas and came to the dance dressed as a cowboy and cowgirl! Joe commented, "I felt kind of stupid at first, vacationing in Texas of all places. But after a while I got into it and I felt better about it."

Basically, the Sadie was a dance enjoyed by all. Junior Mike Branch sums it up in his own words, "I thought it was the best dance I've attended all year."

Music Man Scores for Lady Liberty

The spring musical was performed on five nights, April 18, 19, 24, 25, and 26.

River City, Iowa, the town in which "The Music Man" was set, was also similar to the playwright's own hometown. As the story went, a traveling salesman-conman named Harold Hill ventured into the town and tried to sell the townspeople musical instruments and uniforms by promising to organize a student band for the community's Fourth of July celebration. Of course, he had no intentions of getting a band together, but only Marian the Librarian knew this, a fact which she kept to herself. On the same day that the band uniforms arrived, so did Harold's enemy, Charlie Crowell, who exposed his fakery. Just as the angry townspeople were about to tear Harold to pieces, a band arrived, struggling with the tune of a "Minuet in G," and everyone lived happily ever after.

"The Music Man" was chosen as the spring musical for many reasons. For example, the story took place on the Fourth of July, making it somewhat patriotic, a tie with the centennial of the Statue of Liberty; some of the profits received for one of the performances went to the restoration fund for her. Another reason "The Music Man" was chosen was simply because of its fun quality and ability to entertain. Also, because of the many characters, it had a large cast of 34 people, including students and even some faculty members. "It was time consuming, but it was a lot of fun and worth my while to work so close with a lot of people," commented Julie Rose.

Look Again At Our Year

While earth-shattering events transpired around the globe, the real world for most of us meant life at Los Gatos High. Whether we were interested in sports, academics, activities, or just other people, the 1985-86 school year held something for everybody.

For the first time ever, students were given the option to take seven classes. This gave students a chance to take new courses such as A.P. chemistry, math applications, and orchestra. To fulfill the call for new classes, teachers were added to the staff. Mrs. Jeanne Marie Rachlin and Mr. Mark Magagna were new math teachers. Mrs. Kathy Barraclough took over orchestra in the spring semester after Mr. Lindsay left. The MacDonalds' return from the Fullbright Teacher Exchange program to England added a little residual British flavor to the science department. We also gained two new board members, Mrs. Nancy Crampton and Mr. Dick Kaman, and a new superintendent, Dr. Terrence Towner. Academic honors were attained by many this year. Out of 13,500 finalists across the nation, eleven National Merit finalists were chosen from Los Gatos High.

Our sports teams achieved several lofty goals this year. Varsity football went all the way to win the Division I C.C.S. Championship for the first time in our history and frosh-soph football tied for first in their league. Wrestling placed first in league and Mike Scialabba went to the state finals.

Much like Coke changing to New Coke, some clubs made changes. Pep Band changed its name to the Basketball Band. The War Games club changed to Gamers' Guild. A new club on campus was S.T.A.N.D. (Students and Teachers Against Nuclear Destruction.) The big news in organization activities was the marching band's chance to play at the Expo '86 World's Fair in Vancouver, Canada, in May.

Students lives were affected by on-and off-campus happenings. Students had fun and learned teamwork with such popular "un-sports" as hackysack and paddle ball. On a more sobering note, the fire in August and the big February rainstorm caused much destruction and despair.

Coach Wedemeyer and his wife stay tuned to what is happening on the field.

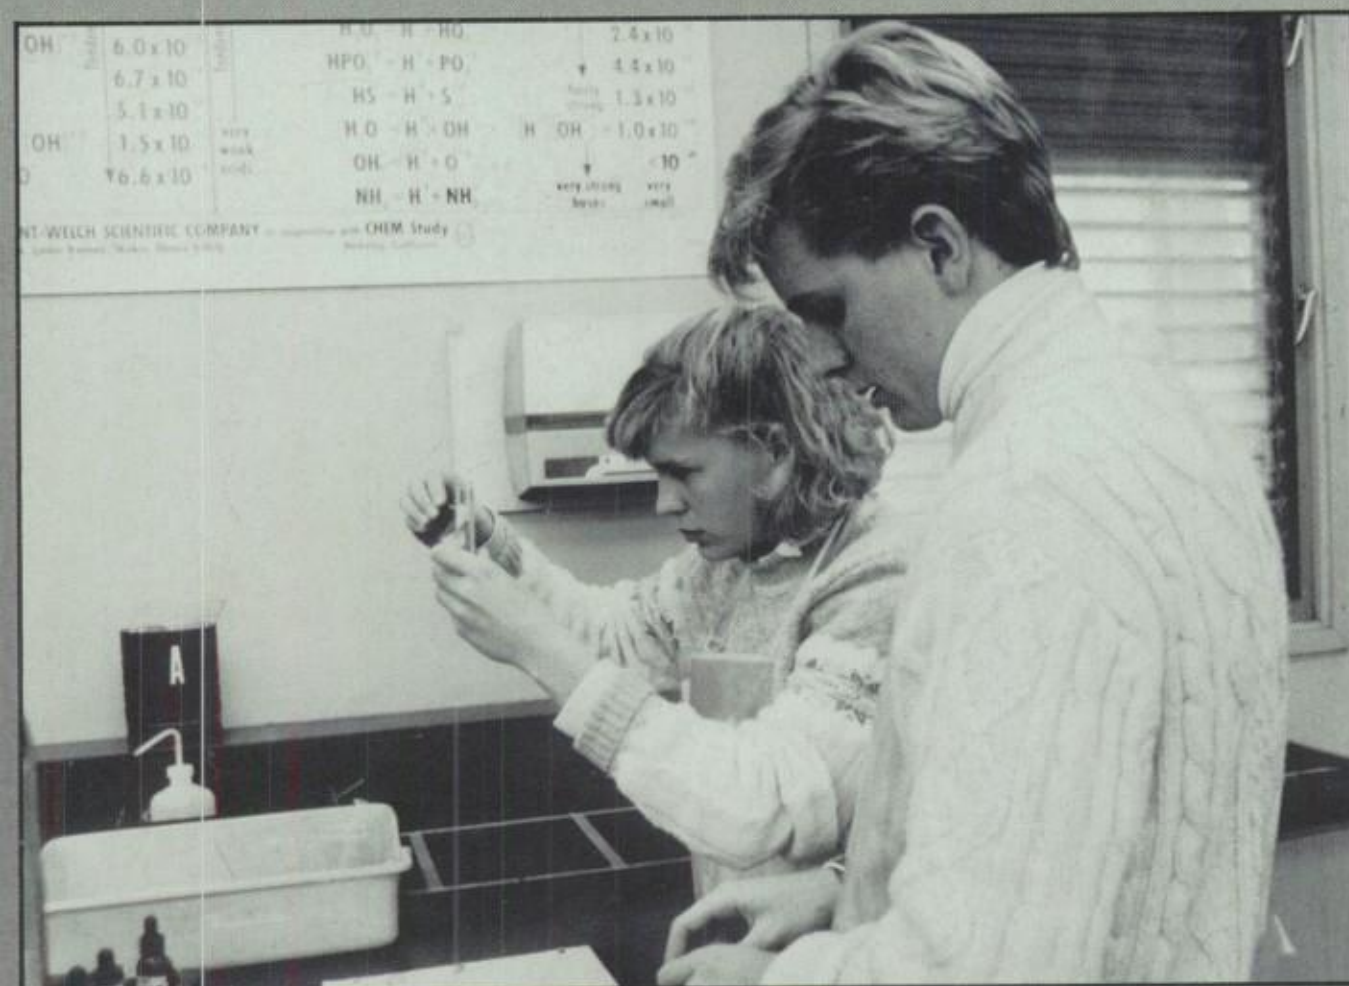

Laughing at a fellow cheerleader, Marguerite Micheal sets up for another cheer.

The end of the year provided the opportunity to look again at some of the highlights of our year and to ponder our relative importance in the scheme of major world events.

WORLD EVENTS

August: Struggle against apartheid in South Africa

September: Killer earthquake struck Mexico City

October: Terrorists hijacked the Achille Lauro cruise ship in the Mediterranean

November: Volcano erupted in Columbia

December: A.I.D.S. (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) victims fought for their rights and lives

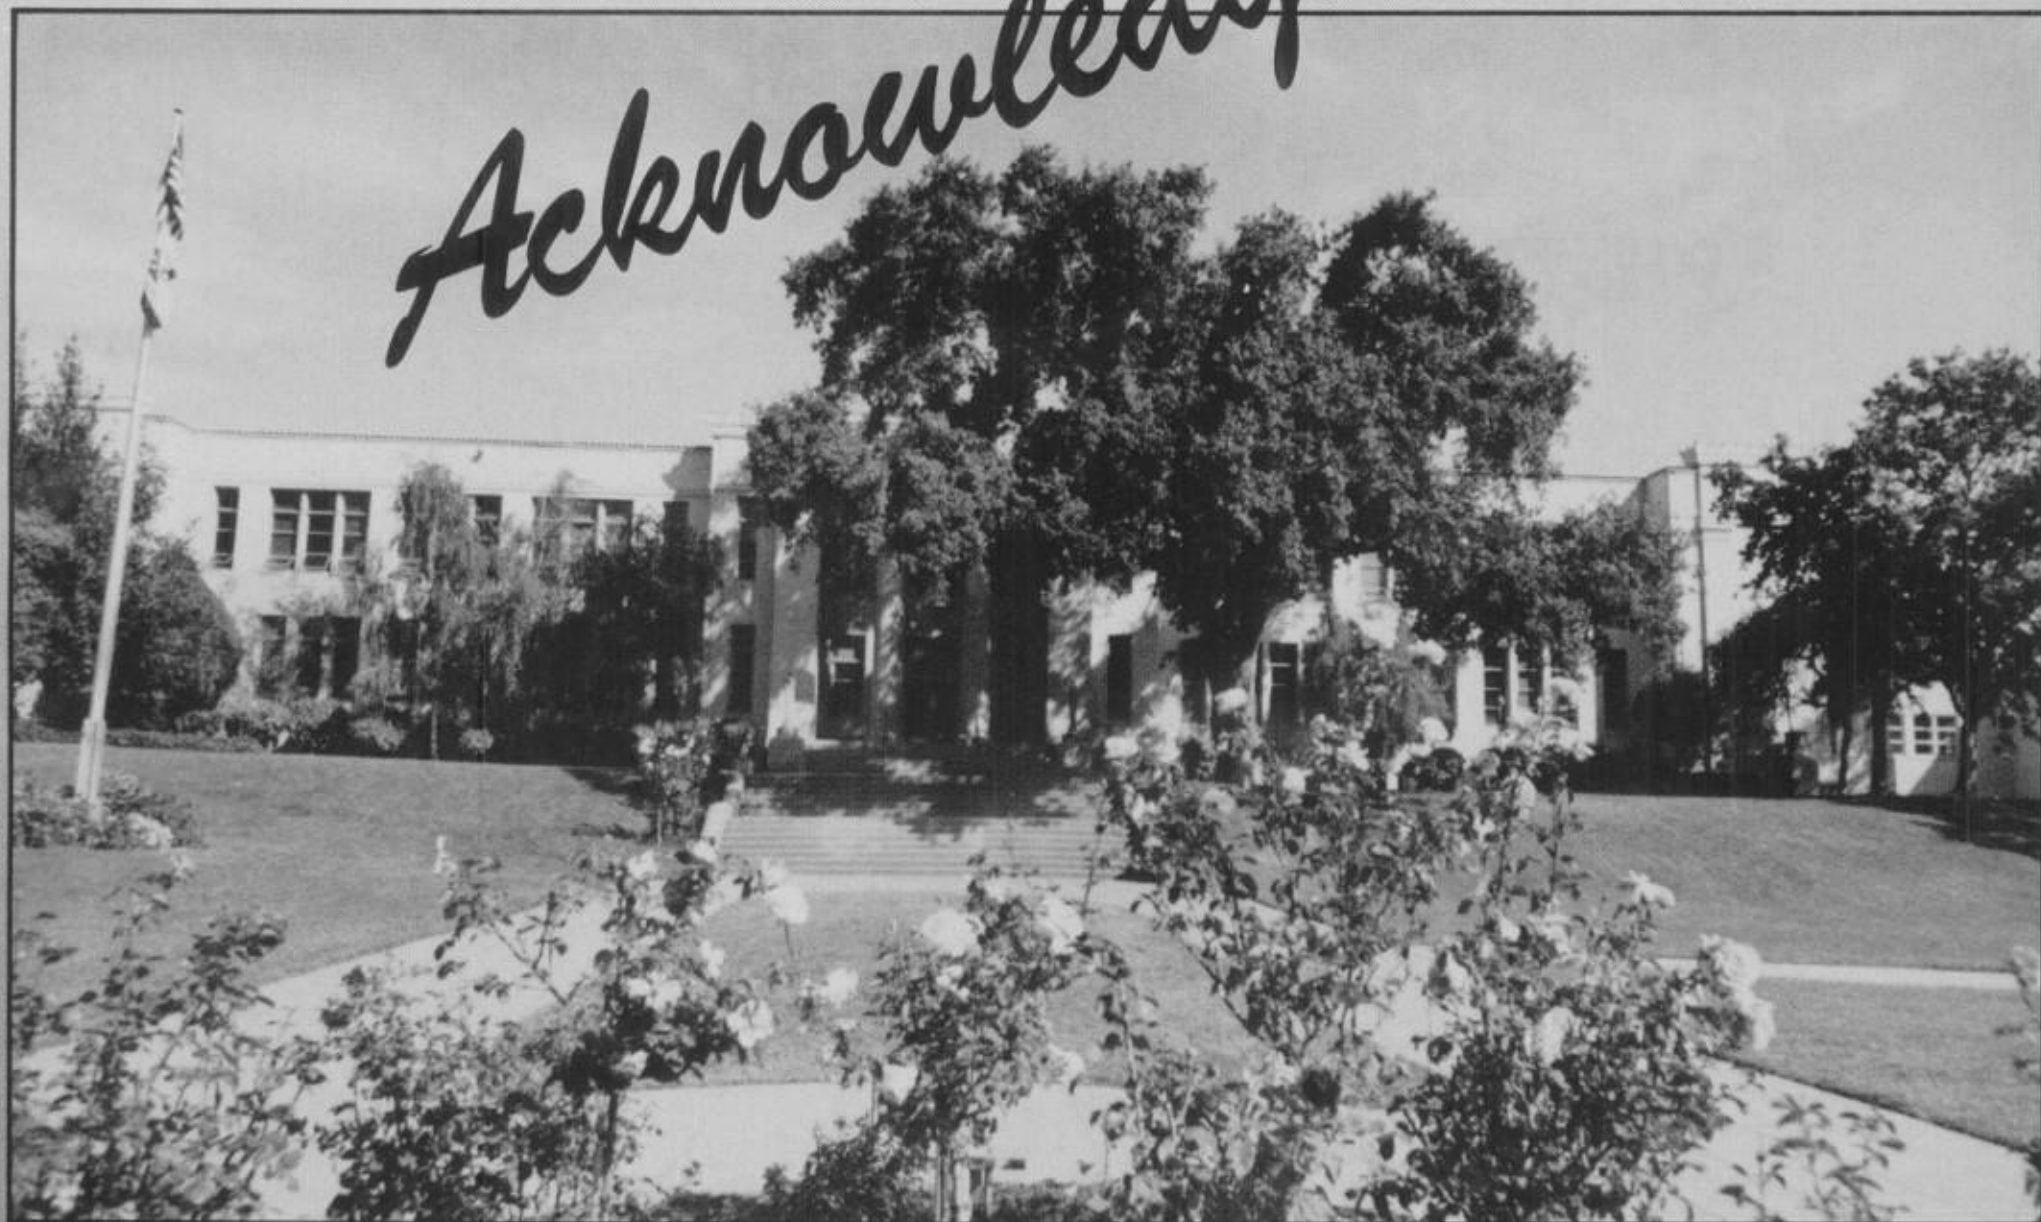

January: Space shuttle, Challenger, exploded, killing all seven astronauts aboard, including the first teacher in space, Christa McAuliffe

February: Corazon Aquino became president of the Philippines when Ferdinand Marcos was forced to leave the country

March: Halley's Comet made its last appearance for the next 76 years.

As the year ends, the school stands more or less empty, its students playing, working, traveling, and waiting for next September to come around.

Acknowledgments

Copy deadlines, layout deadlines, photo deadlines — deadlines, deadlines deadlines. They never seemed to end; as soon as one was finished, we were already halfway into the next one. It was difficult to understand what went into putting together a book in about 27 weeks that was supposed to cover a years' worth of events, unless you were on the yearbook staff. Ten hour school days were not uncommon. The time and frustration were worthwhile when other students looked again and again at the great effort of the 1986 Wildcat staff.

As co-editors, we wanted to thank the many people whose help made this the fantastic book it was. First and foremost was our adviser, Mrs. Kathie Maunder, whose time and energy never seemed to end. Our representative from Hunter Publishing, Dave Setnicker, deserved thanks for the ideas he shared with us and the improvements he helped us to make. Mr. Carl Otsuki of Western School Portraits was in charge of our photographic needs; he made sure we got that color enlargement or "rushed" that roll of pictures through the developing process to ensure that we made our deadlines on time. Robert Diaz of Modern Artists was the man behind the cover; he did the outstanding artwork for the cover of the book.

Thanks also to the entire yearbook staff who helped Mrs. Maunder keep her perfect record of never having missed a deadline! Finally, thank you to those students who donated their time to pose for a picture or donate a picture that they had taken themselves.

We sincerely hope that you will "look again" in the future at the wonderful past of Los Gatos High School.
